RACE IS CALLED OFF, FOG AND NO WIND

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 30.—Heavy fog and absence of wind prevented the Canadian defender Bluenose and the American challenger Columbia from sailing the second race of the series for the International Fishermen's trophy today.

Successive postponements were made early in the day in the hope that conditions would improve, but at 10.30 a. m. the fog had cleared but little and there was only a three-knot breeze, so the race committee called off today's contest.

Bluenose, victor in the first race yesterday, needs but one more win to keep the trophy for another year.

FIN. COM. PROBES LAW DEPARTMENT

A sweeping investigation of the city law department has been begun by the Boston Finance Commission, it was learned today.

The probe principally has to do with the payment of claims.

The finance commission also wants to know by what authority the corporation counsel, E. Mark Sullivan, head of the city law department, drew money from the city treasury for trips to Milwaukee and Montreal, the latter with the Ancient and Honorable Artillery recently when the Ancients lost considerable

40 BOY ATHLETES "IN BAD" AT NEWTON PRIVATE SCHOOL

The antics indulged in by some forty Newton boys on the athletic field of the exclusive Country Day School have caused a juvenile scandal. Shirley K. Kerns, proprietor of the school, declared the boys were too rough for his equipment to stand the strain and four of them in court today were fined $10 each. Judge Wenton suspended the fines with a provision that the four name the other thirty-six, who had given fictitious names.

FIVE FISH TRUST PRISONERS LEAVE RUTLAND THURSDAY

The five mebers of the Fish Trust who were transferred from Deer Island in October to the prison camp at Rutland will be released by the State Board of Parole Thursday.

They are F. Munroe Dyer, John Burns, Jr., Ernest A. Jacobs, Jr., Joshua Paine and Joseph A. Rich. These men were eligible for parole on August 6. They were sentenced to ten months in jail on April 6 and have served almost seven months.

"GOOD FELLOW" MADE RUM AND WAS PROUD OF IT

Ed Dillon was caught dispensing home brew.

He was selling it in his own home in Shawmut avenue, South End.

He was rather proud of the fact that he'd made it himself and he said so. He invited his friends to purchase. They did, and so did the police. Hence a session today with Judge Bennett in the East Dedham Court.

Judge—Sergeant, what do you know about this man?

Sergeant Hines—Well, your honor, he's a good fellow and it's his first offence.

Judge (eyeing the prisoner sternly) —Hmmmmm!

Hines—He's in delicate health, your honor, and is going to the hospital today.

Judge—Fifty-dollar fine. Drank his own hootch, I suppose.

BOSTON MAN IS KILLED BY FUMES

Vineyard Haven, Oct. 30.—Arthur W. White of Boston, one of two men found unconscious in the motor launch Vitesse when it drifted to the North shore of Martha's Vineyard Island last Sunday morning, died of poisoning from gasoline fumes at a hospital here today.

His companion, William H. Jackson of Fall River, was still unconscious and hospital physicians said his condition was serious.

BACK BAY RAID STORY REVEALED

Clark Sues to Annul Divorce Decree; Names Chocolate Man in Suit

"If I play with fire, I must expect to b burned!"

This was the philosophical way in which Mrs. Rachel G. Clark, pretty brookline divorcee and former wife of Harold J. Clark, Boston lawyer looked at a surprise party staged by a party of Burns detectives who found her and Ernest A. Wamsley sales manager of the Beacon Chocolate Company in a room at No. 5 Blackwood street, Back Bay.

The story of the surprise party was told today in Suffolk County divorce court, where Clark is asking that the divorce granted his wife last March be vacated and not be permitted to become absolute.

Clark names the sales manager of the Beacon Chocolate Company as correspondent in the case. Clark also has a divorce suit against Mrs. Clark pending in the Probate Court at Dedham on the grounds of infidelity.

TRAILED ALL SUMMER.

Patrolman Joseph O'Connor, former Burns detective, testified he shadowed Mrs. Clark most of the Summer of 1922. He said that she and Wamsley used to meet regularly at Coolidge Corner and from there start on various trips.

On November 17, 1922, O'Connor testified, he and other Burns detectives shadowed Mrs. Clark and Wamsley to a house at No. 5 Blackwood street, Back Bay. There they entered and asked for the room in which Wamsley was located.

"When we entered the room," testified O'Connor, "We found Wamsley and Mrs. Clark. Mrs. Clark tried to hide in a corner while Wamsley hid behind the door.

"We asked the woman to tell us her name," the sleuth testified. She first stated she was single. Next she said she was divorced. Then she admitted that she was Mrs. Clark.

"I am not a bad woman,' she declared when she finally got her breath.' I love Mr. Walmsley and he loves me. Mrs. Walmsley is going to divorce him. When she gets her divorce and I get mine from my husband Mr. Walmsley and I are going to get married. There is nothing wrong in what we have done. Nothing can stop me from meeting Mr. Walmsley.'"

O'Connor then testified that she said her husband was a prominent Tremont street lawyer.

AT WALTHAM CLUB.

Oscar Weldon, another Burns man, testified to following Mrs. Clark and Walmsley. He said that they were together in the Parker House on November 3, 1923, at the American

BONAR LAW, BRITISH EX-PREMIER, DEAD

London, Oct. 30.—Andrew Bonar Law, former prime Minister of Great Britain, died here today, following a long illness, from septic pneumonia.

His ill health after he became prime minister, following David Lloyd George, caused him to resign that important office after holding it but seven months.

His death has brought out the definite statement in the press for the first time that he had been suffering from cancer of the throat for a considerable period. Friends visiting him at Brighton in the middle of October knew that he had lost the fight against the malady and urged him to return to London. This change, however, exposed him to in-

MAINE MAN REFUSED TO PAY

Houlton Potato Grower Snared by "Lure," but Defied the Gang on "Shakedown"

One of the promised surprise witnesses in the blackmail trial in Superior Court slipped into town today and prepared to take the stand against "Big Bill" Corcoran and other alleged ring members charged with extortion, blackmail, conspiracy and other things.

He was A. —— Lombard, potato grower from Houlton, Me.

It is understood Mr. Lombard once deserted his potatoes long enough to visit Boston, unhappily straying across a ring lure and being taken by the ring.

He was trapped but not shaken down, refusing to "come across."

He is the third man from Maine mentioned in ring machinations. A Mr. Ayer, railroad magnate, was trapped but refused to give in according to the confession of Teresa Duggan and "mysterious Mr. Curtis," who gave up $15,000.

Taken part in this trap, according to Teddy, was Evangeline Wood, now peddling personality in a Back

NEW VICTIM OF BLACKMAIL RING SHOWS UP READY TO TESTIFY

MAINE MAN REFUSED TO FALL FOR "SHAKEDOWN"

Bay School. Then she was "Vassy the Vamp."

With Maine figuring so prominently it is believed the ring must have maintained a permanent lure in the North Station, a sort of official greeter who escorted the suckers to the secondary line of offense—the lady lures.

What Mr. Lumbard would say today was eagerly awaited by the throng which continues to pack Judge Quinn's oak-finished court room.

STARTLES COURT

The lethargy usually noticeable in "Shaker Row" in the famous trial now in its 10th day was rudely disturbed today.

She was Wall, the little near sighted lady who affects frocks of many hues and talks with a Back Bay accent was on the witness stand. Suddenly William J. Corcoran-e lawyer—Joseph P. Walsh—wheeled his "Fatty" Arbuckle-like self about-face and shouted:

"Stand up."

"Big Bill" Corcoran, his brother Leo, Attorney Harry E. Levenson and other alleged members of the Blackmail Ring who occupy the row were so taken off their guard they thought there was a fire.

"Now," said Mr. Walsh with great pulmonity to the lady who rented the ring the "quiet flat" in Cambridge, where "Tedy" Duggan and Mrs. Lillian Reese "did their stuff" so well on Max Korn and Kenneth Merrill they were trapped, "who is that?"

He pointed to "Big Bill." Then to Mike Lyons, Leo Corcoran, Levenson, J. Warren Kane and others in the row merely for the purpose of identification.

Only Mr. Kane was Miss Wall positive as to his identity. She knew him by his bald head, despite Mr. Kaneh aving gained forty pounds since ring affairs came to light three years ago.

MOVED SUDDENLY

Miss Wall was on the witness stand most of the day, testifying as to details of the apartment at No. 88 Hancock street, Cambridge, she rented, she testified, to Kane. The folks moved so suddenly, she testified, they gave no notice and only returned one key, which was left in the mail box.

The trial suffered its daily delay today. This time 55 minutes elapsed before judge and jury moved into court.

Q. (By Attorney Callaghan)—How long did you occupy the apartment at No. 88 Hancock street, Cambridge, before September, 1919? A.—From 1917 to 1919.

Q.—Did you ever sublet it prior to 1919? A.—No.

Q.—The apartment was on what floor? A.—On the second floor.

Q.—How many apartments were there on that floor? A.—Four I think.

Q.—Your apartment consisted of how many rooms? A.—Three rooms, hall and kitchenette.

Q.—To the right of the living room was the bedroom? A.—No, to the left.

TALKED WITH HIM

At Attorney Callahan's request Miss Wall sketched a diagram of the apartment.

Q.—Did a man come who said he was J. Warren Kane? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he say he was J. Warren Kane or just "Warren Kane?" A.—J. Warren Kane.

Q.—Did he give you a card reading "J. Warren Kane?" A.—No.

Q.—Did you have a talk with this man in the apartment. A.—Yes.

Q.—How long did you talk with him. A.—Ten or fifteen minutes.

Q.—When was this? A.—Sometime in September 1919.

Q.—Are you clear in your mind how he appeared? A.—He appeared to be middle aged.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you were more concerned in the parties who were to occupy the apartment than in the man who came to hire it? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew the man hiring it was not going to occupy it? A.—Yes.

Q.—And therefore you did not observe him particularly. A.—No.

Q.—There was nothing distinctive about him that you can remember?

"I asked Mrs. Danforth of that wasn't Mr. Kane."

A.—Yes, there was. He was bald-headed.

Q.—Now, you had not seen Mr. Kane from 1919 until the trial, had you? A.—Yes. I saw him at the time of the Grand Jury hearing.

WAS NOT SURE

Q.—Are you sure of that? A.—No. I am not quite sure, I guess I did not see him then.

Q.—You have been here every day in court? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you have observed Mr. Kane daily. A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he pointed out to you by anybody? A.—No.

Q.—You have never seen William J. Corcoran in your life until the trial have you? A.—No.

Q.—How did you know him then? A.—By his pictures in the newspapers.

Q.—Did you talk to anybody about Mr. Kane in court. A.—Yes I asked Mrs. Danforth if Mr. Kane wasn't the man sitting next but one to Mr. Corcoran.

Q.—Then there was doubt in your mind about him? A.—No. But I am shortsighted.

Q.—There was sufficient doubt in your mind to ask Mrs. Danforth to verify it? A.—No I was sure.

The burden of Miss Wall's testimony under cross-examination was that she was not aided in identifying Kane by seeing any picture of him. She said she saw a picture of Kane in a newspaper, but that it did not look much like him. Judge Quinn smiled at this.

The witness said that she wore eyeglasses at times, but that she couldn't remember if she wore them the day Kane is alleged to have hired the apartment. Her memory being refreshed by the reading of testimony before the Grand Jury, she said she was now sure that the name of the client that Kane gave her was J. J. Duggan and not J. I. Duggan, as she testified yesterday. Miss Wall said that she was positive it was not J. L. Donovan.

Witness further said under cross-examination that money was paid for the flat the day that people came to occupy it. Only a part of the rent was paid at that time, she said.

Miss Wall said she wrote out a receipt in the name of "J. J. Duggan," but that she didn't know if Kane took it or not. She also said she had written out another receipt when the flat was occupied.

HARD OF HEARING

She said she was hard of hearing and probably "misheard" some questions asked her before the grand jury. She then repeated that the money was, to her best recollection, paid to her in person and not sent. In relation to the question of this receipt asked you yesterday, do you remember the court saying to you after you had said "I must have done it" "No, no, your best memory. Can you remember that you did?" Ans—Yes. I couldn't remember at the moment but now I can remember.

Q.—Did you say the apartment was on the second floor? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that there was no elevator in the house? Yes.

Miss Wall admitted she had described Kane to some of her friends after Mrs. Duggan and Mrs. Reese had left the apartment. She was asked to name these friends and reluctantly gave the names of Miss Mary Robbins of No. 47 Early street, Cambridge, as one of the persons to whom she had described Kane long before the trial.

Miss Wall admitted that the cord on the extension lamp over the dining room was sufficiently long enough to extend into the bedroom and onto the bed.

After a twenty-five minute recess there was a brief conference at the bench between Judge Quinn, District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, Prosecutor Arthur D. Hill and Attorney Hurwitz. The nature of the conference was not disclosed.

Miss Wall was then briefly cross-examined by Attorney Gallagher, counsel for Theodore Bearse. In reply to a question she said the telephone in the Hancock street apartment was on the wall of the dining room.

IDENTIFIES CORCORAN

Attorney Joseph P. Walsh, attorney for William J. Corcoran then questioned witness. Walsh asked Corcoran to stand. Pointing to Corcoran he asked the witness if she recognized him as William J. Corcoran. She said she did, from newspaper pictures.

Michael J. Lyons, another of the defendants, then arose from his seat at Mr. Walsh's request.

"Look at that man," said Walsh. "Can you identify him?"

Miss Wall paused for fully a minute. Then she said. "Well, it's not Mr. Kane."

"Who is he?" asked Mr. Walsh. "I am not sure," said the witness.

"Give us your impression."

"Well, it's either Mr. Theodore Bearse or Mr. Leo Corcoran."

Harry E. Levenson then rose from his seat at Mr. Walsh's request and Miss Wall said she did not know him.

Miss Wall said she had seen pictures in the newspapers of William J. Corcoran and J. Warren Kane. She recognized Corcoran from his picture, but that the picture of Kane was no a good one.

HIS BALD HEAD

Mr. Walsh then asked her to explain the difference between the picture of Mr. Kane and his appearance as she recalled him. Miss Wall replied, "In the picture of Mr. Kane he had a fat on."

Q.—What other difference were there? A.—I couldn't see his bald head.

She added that there was no differences in the contour of his face, but that it was a blurred print and indistinct.

Miss Wall said that before she sublet her flat in 1919 she had kept house for her father and brother and that at one time she was engaged by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Miss Wall also said she had made a statement to Inspector John Mitchell which you gave Mr. Kane before he arrived the second time. A.—Yes.

KEYS BY MAIL

Q.—You said that you placed it on the table before he came. A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Mrs. Duggan and Mrs. Reese leave the apartment without giving you notice? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did they return your keys? A.—No. Someone returned one key only by mail.

Attorney McDonald was expected to tell of what became of the check and other details leading up to the settlement by Donovan, whose heavy contribution was made to escape notoriety and prosecution on a statutory charge with Mrs. Duggan.

Donovan has waived his rights of privilege between client and counsel, and Attorney McDonald therefore will be unhampered by professional ethics in his testimony. Former Assistant United States District Attorney John H. Casey, also counsel for Donovan in the alleged blackmail plot, testified with the consent of Donovan, how he engaged the Pinkertons to shadow Mrs. Duggan and make reports as to her movements.

KEPT UP VISITS

"I remember cautioning Mr. Donovan not to see her and that their relations must cease," testified Attorney Casey.

According to admissions made by Donovan on the witness stand he ignored his counsel's warnings and met Mrs. Duggan twice weekly on Tuesdays and Saturdays up to a week or two before the trial.

Mr. Casey denied that he told Mrs. Duggan to get in touch with her husband, Francis Duggan. Donovan had testified that the suggestion had come from Mr. Casey at a conference which Donovan and Mrs. Duggan had with Attorney Casey in the latter's office.

Mrs. May Louise Lyons, comely and smartly attired, is also scheduled to testify today. She was secretary to William J. Corcoran when he was in the drug business. She lives with her mother on Appleton street.

Inspector John Mitchell has returned from Maine with an important witness, according to report in the Corcoran trial.

Levenson Narrowly Escapes Injury in Auto Crash

Attorney Harry E. Levenson, one of the eight defendants in the alleged Blackmail Ring trial, narrowly escaped injury today on his way to court. His automobile collided with a meat truck and was partially wrecked.

Leaving his chauffeur to salvage affairs Levenson hurried to court only to suffer a 50-minute wait with other attendants due to the tardiness of Special Prosecutor Hill.

Cross-examination of Donovan revealed that the defence will contend that William J. Corcoran as counsel for Mrs. Duggan in her divorce action, acted in that capacity in bringing about a settlement of the Donovan case.

Attorney Joseph Walsh asked Donovan if he didn't know that $1,000 of the $2,000 which Donovan paid Attorney McDonald went to Corcoran as a fee. Donovan said it might have.

Interrogation of Donovan by the defence also showed that he has been constantly shadowed. He was catechised in detail concerning his movements last Thursday. He was asked if he didn't stop to get a young lady at a house on Blue Hill avenue. He refused to tell the girl's name. He denied that his refusal to identify her was due to fear of incriminating himself.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

RATHER DULL NEWS this morning unless something happens very late. The American boat was beaten in the sailing race by the Nova Scotia schooner Bluenose. Fortunately that's not important; but the British build better flying machines than we build and that IS important.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE, which imitates a young horse looking for something at which it may shy, was less nervous yesterday. But something is the matter with those speculators. They know, but the public doesn't, what indigestible things they have eaten and what lies heavily on their stomachs.

COTTON sold off a little, but it is still above 30, and if you want it you might as well buy it now. It is going to be a scarce commodity.

Fortunately, the cotton growers will get a somewhat better price, not because they deserve it, as they do, but because the crop will be small.

CHICKENS LAY more eggs when you light the coop at night, prolonging the period of eating. Everybody knows that. Now it is shown that prolonging the day by electric light will make plants increase their growth.

To suggest that one day the light of the sun, stored up in electricity, will be used at night to increase growth in orchards and even in entire forests, flying machines helping in the process, would seem preposterous. But not more preposterous than electric light or flying would have seemed a few years ago.

JOHN BOVINGDON, Harvard graduate of 1915, starts the "Artists' Church." Only ladies were present last Sunday. The Reverend Bovingdon in knickerbockers, golf stockings, brown leather shoes and white silk shirt "Danced the 23d Psalm." It is necessary to express our religious feelings physically; that's why he danced that Psalm.

Just how you COULD dance "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want," and the rest of that Psalm, is not clear to the layman. David danced before the Ark, why not Bovingdon? Perhaps we take religion too solemnly.

IT SEEMS we are getting poorer, especially the richest among us. Only one man in the United States pays tax on income of five million dollars. The government doesn't tell who that one is. Income tax reports are kept secret. The tax that a man pays on a small home is public property.

ONLY TWENTY-ONE Americans reported incomes of one million dollars or more.

In 1920 seventy reported incomes of a million. The military income of five millions represents 5 per cent. of one hundred million dollars. Several Americans would laugh if you offered them a hundred million for everything they own. This doesn't mean illegal or criminal evasion of income tax. The laws are drawn so that they reach small men, doctors, lawyers, moderate-sized business men. They don't reach the really great fortunes. Everybody knows that several great fortunes, Henry Ford's, John D. Rockefeller's and two or three others are worth many times one hundred million dollars. But the money is in corporations do not draw the corporations do not draw the money out. They re-invest it; a good thing when it is reinvested in labor-giving enterprises, not so good when invested in bonds that pay no tax whatever.

MR. ZANGWILL objects to the Palestine Zionist movement, because there isn't room in Palestine for all Jews. He wants a homeland where all the Jews, and Jews only, will live.

Judge Mack says he doesn't want a homeland where all of the Jews in the world will live.

THE GENTLEMEN need not worry. There won't be any homeland established, for all

Romance Recalled by Sale

MISS MADELINE BESLEY

HARVARD GRADS BID AT 'WIDOW' NOLEN SALE

New York, Oct. 30.—Former Harvard students and prominent Boston folk outnumbered and outbid New Yorkers at the auction of the large collection of early American furniture and art of the late William W. Nolen, head of the tutoring school in Little Hall, Harvard square, "the Widow Nolen," as he was familiarly known among the student body.

During the first day of the sale, 166 pieces were sold for an aggregate sum of $8,365. The proceeds will go to Miss Madeline Besley, No. 89 Brattle street, Cambridge, the childhood sweetheart of the collector and tutor, who gladdened his last days and to whom he left the bulk of his property at his death last June.

Interest in the sale is chiefly among Harvard men. The "widow's" boys are gathered in the corridors of the auction rooms, where animated conversations of an earlier day take place.

"Widow Nolen got me by the entrance examinations in 1885," a prosperous man, who watched every sale with keen interest, recalled. "He tutored me for four hard years—and got me through."

And so the "widow's" boys are gathering to buy the treasures from his collection that they best remember.

"Widow" Nolen lived a lonely life. The year before he died, he found companionship when the quarrel between him and his childhood sweetheart, Miss Besley, was mended, and Miss Besley, with her mother, came from Providence to be near him in his final illness.

The Nolen collection of antiques, which filled the rooms and corridors of Little Hall, Cambridge, occupied by the Nolen school, was estimated at the time of the collector's death to be worth at least $150,000.

GIRL "HUSBAND" APPEALS SENTENCE

Framingham, Oct. 30.—Ethel Kimball is going back to Sherborn prison unless an appeal taken here is successful. Ethel is the Brighton woman whose mania for posing as a man carried her so far that she married a woman once, and this time brought a supposed "wife" to Framingham. Two years ago Ethel posed as James W. Nathaway. This time she was George Moore, alias Wilson. She was arrested in a Marlboro hotel Sunday night after a week of luxury at the expense of the hotel and a number of local merchants, the police say. Ethel has visited Sherborn several times at the invitation of the State. This time she was sentenced as a loiterer and as disorderly.

$75,000 Hotel Gem Theft

Cincinnati, Oct. 30.—Diamonds and jewelry valued at $75,000 were stolen by thieves from a room on the third floor of the Sinton Hotel here according to a report made today by Ernest F. Straus, Chicago, who said he represents two firms of New York jewelers and importers.

GIVES LIE AT STOKES HEARING

Mother of Divorce Case Defendant Denounces All Accusers of Her Daughter

New York, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes was a student in a seminary in Washington in 1904-05 during which year witnesses for W. E. D. Stokes alleged she was seen in Bunceton, Mo., Mrs. Emma Elwood Miller, her mother testified today. Mrs. Stokes, her mother said, had never been in Bunceton.

Mrs. Miller who comes from Denver was called to clear up a contradiction in the testimony of her daughter and Edgar T. Wallace, "the man in the case."

At the previous trial Mrs. Stokes testified Wallace had proposed to her. Testifying yesterday, Wallace denied that he had ever suggested marriage.

EXPLAINS MISTAKE

"I believed my daughter the most beautiful girl in the world and had no doubt that any man who paid her attention wished to marry her," Mrs. Miller testified.

"Wallace paid her a compliment once when talking to me and I told Helen he had asked for her hand. It seemed to me he had."

That, she said, was what Mrs. Stokes had in mind when she testified Wallace wanted to marry her, Mrs. Miller denied that Mrs. Stokes had ever been in Bunceton, Mo., Stokes' attorneys having charged she went there with Wallace in 1904.

From 1900 to 1905 her daughter attended the National Park Seminary at Washington, Mrs. Miller testified. She told of the trip to San Francisco in 1906 when she and Mrs. Stokes met Wallace.

"Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, presented Wallace to us," she said.

"The famous beach picture," showing Mrs. Stokes and Wallace in an unconventional pose, was identified by Mrs. Miller. "I snapped it myself," she said.

separation from the order.

A temporary adjustment of the trouble was reached later.

At the opening of the morning session Robert Santangelo, representing twenty-eight of the thirty-five New York delegates, presented a resolution declaring illegal the action of the Supreme Council in suspending Giovanitti and Antonini on the ground that they had made un-American statements and had been responsible for disorder that brought the opening meeting of the convention to a close but a few minutes after it had begun.

The resolution declared that neither Antonini nor Giovanitti had made un-American statements at any time and it requested that they be tried before the entire convention, instead of before a special committee as directed by the Supreme Council.

It was said that the boiling delegation represented 34,000 members of the order in New York State.

Later the convention acceded to the bolters demand that the two men be tried before the full convention.

It was voted that Giovanitti and Antonini be brought before the session at tomorrow morning's business session and that the special committee, after hearing the testimony, decide on the final disposition of the case.

GIRLS FLEE FLOOD IN HYDRANT SMASH

Several girl employes of the Gillette Safety Razor Co. were forced to flee a gushing today when a hydrant smashed by an army truck sent huge columns of water, at tremendous pressure, into the noon hour crowd. The truck driven by Private John Smith knocked the hydrant into the middle of the street ripping up twenty feet of piping and releasing a huge volume of water. The accident happened at Dorchester avenue and West 1st. street. Smith was arrested for drunkeness.

FAIRBANKS SEES FIRST FIREWORKS IN 21 YRS.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Oct. 30.—As one result of the unseasonably warm weather Alaska has been experiencing, citizens of this city tomorrow night will see their first fireworks display in twenty-one years.

The exhibition was arranged by a local newspaper so children could see how their fellows in lower latitudes celebrate the national birthday. Fireworks displays here on July 4 are impossible on account of the twenty-four hours of daylight at that season.

LAWRENCE GIRL OF 8 IS KILLED BY FLAMES

Lawrence, Oct. 30.—Eight-year-old Marie Gilvery died in the Lawrence General Hospital today from burns received last night while her parents were absent from their home at No. 22 Falmouth street, South Lawrence. John McLaughlin saw the child, her nightgown in flames, through a window, smashed it and wrapped her in a blanket. Two smaller children were in the house.

SOMERVILLE WOMAN DIES OF GAS POISON

Small Dog's Evil Eye Gets the Goat of Small Boy's Pa

Providence, Oct. 30.—The Dublin Irishman's famous "treasonable smile," for which he was arrested by the Black and Tan police has been matched by somebody's dachshund here.

And if somebody's dachshund doesn't quit watching Louis Rosen, Samuel Rosen's two and a half years old son, there's going to be trouble for the long-barrelled canine.

Two weeks ago, Louis ran over the dachshund on his tricycle. Ever since then, said the father, the dog has been watching the boy with a most vindictive expression. He went to the Chalkstone avenue police station and made a complaint.

SHOOTING OF BOY HUNTER IS PROBED

Westminster, Oct. 30.—Because of additional evidence obtained today by the State constabulary, Dr. D. S. Woodworth, medical examiner, is conducting a further investigation into the killing of Hans Leino, 17 years old, by Samuel Brough, Jr., 16, late yesterday after their return from a hunting trip.

The medical examiner and police were told that a third boy, now being sought, saw the shooting and that Brough, thinking that all the charges of birdshot had been removed, pointed his gun at Leino and pulled the trigger.

GETS 3 MONTHS FOR IMPERSONATING COP

Charles W. Kenyon, 43 years old, of Worcester street, South End in Municipal court today was given three months for impersonating a police officer. He appealed.

He was arrested on complaint of Miss Elmira McDonald of No. 464 Shawmut avenue, who charged Kenyon tried to take a ring she was holding in security for a loan made to Annie Slattery, said to be housekeeper for Kenyon. She took the ring some time ago in return for a loan of one dollar. While attempting to get the ring Kenyon said he was a policeman.

House November 14 and that on November 16 they met at Harvard square, Cambridge, and went to the Waltham Country Club, where they played golf the remainder of the afternoon.

Detective O'Connor also testified that while in New York on February 22, 1923, he saw Walmsley and Mrs. Clark on Forty-second street. He said he followed them to a candy store on Fifth avenue, where he heard Walmsley introduce Mrs. Clark to the manager of the store as his wife.

Wilson testified that Mrs. Clark admitted being at the Blackwood street house with Walsley before the time they were caught. They were caught at that house, he said, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Wilson testified that when he asked Mrs. Clark to put on her clothes and leave the house she exclaimed, "I will not be seen going out with so many men. I will go out with one of you. This is a nasty mess to get in, but if one plays with fire they must expect to be burned."

The strike was said to be collapsing.

MYSTERY IN WILSON REGIME

Missouri Political Leader Sold Hospital Site to the U. S. Under Queer Contract

Washington, Oct. 30 (I.N.S.)—Senatorial investigators of the United States Veterans Bureau, today temporarily suspended investigation of the acts of Charles R. Forbes, director of the bureau under the Harding administration, and turned the spotlight on some of the transactions negotiated in the closing days of the Wilson administration.

The deal which the committee was particularly curious about was one in which E. E. Morse, Missouri political leader sold the government a hospital site at Excelsior Springs, Mo., under a peculiar form of contract. The Public Health Service condemned this transaction but, nevertheless, the purchase price was later increased by $12,000.

C. R. Forbes

DOCUMENTS LOST.

An air of mystery was added to the case when it was revealed that some important documents concerning this deal have disappeared from the government's files.

The missing documents include the government's copy of the contract, written in the form of a "letter of agreement" signed by Morse and former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ewing Laporte, who was in charge of war risk insurance. Instead, investigators found a paper, purported to be signed by Morse which showed a $12,000 variation in the purchase price originally agreed upon and the one finally written into the contract.

Testimony already before the committee shows that former Secretary of the Treasury Houston approved the deal as one of his last official acts. The negotiations were carried on through Laporte.

WAS PAID $123,000.

John F. O'Ryan, counsel for the committee, read documents that showed Morse received a final payment from the Veterans' Bureau of $123,000. Among the individual items was the $90,000, agreed price for the Morse homestead; $26,100 for the additional land Morse purchased in agreement with the government, and $6,237 Morse had expended in additions to the original building. These made a total of $152,337, and after deducting the rental paid by the government in 1921, General O'Ryan said the sum due Morse in the final settlement apparently was $126,846. He added that there were no records to show how the round sum of $123,000 was arrived at.

"They gave me an offer and I took it," Morse broke in. "They had notified me that they were going to cancel the lease, and I was anxious to get the sale closed up."

WORTH ONLY $80,000.

More said that of the total acreage originally purchased for $26,000, he retained 28 or 27 lots which the government did not need. The value of these lots was not determined but Morse agreed to furnish the committee figures showing the tax assessments levied against them.

General O'Brien then read into the record an affidavit by J. J. Kenrick, a real estate dealer of Kansas City, who appraised the total value of the original plant as $35,000 and the total value of the plant at not in excess of $80,000.

Morse then proposed to the committee that the plant be reappraised, saying he would be willing to refund to the government the difference between the total of the appraisement and the net total he received from the Veterans' Bureau. His offer contemplated the appointment of one appraiser by the Veterans' Bureau and one by himself, the two thus selected to name a third.

Deserted Girl at Church

HENRY J. REYNOLDS

GIRL LEFT AT ALTAR IS LOYAL TO FIANCE

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 30.—Miss Alice McDermott, pretty shoe worker, who was left "waiting at the church" when the man she was to marry, Henry J. Reynolds of Nashua, failed to appear, is confident that some unpreventable occurrence caused his disappearance.

"This is more like a funeral than a wedding," the girl told a Boston American reporter in the presence of numerous disappointed guests who gathered from all over the State.

"I know that Henry did not disappoint me intentionally," she said. "There had been no trouble and he appeared as devoted to me as ever."

Miss McDermott offered two theories for her fiance's mysterious disappearance. At the time when he vanished, she said, he had about $1,000 on his person, which was to defray the expenses of a honeymoon. It is possible, she declared, that he may have been beaten and robbed.

The other possible explanation for his absence, Miss McDermott said, is that Reynolds, while in the navy had suffered a fall from the mast of his ship and had at times shown signs of mental derangement.

The couple were to have been married Monday morning in St. Jerome's Cathedral, here.

Reynolds, who is 23 years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Reynolds of No. 34 Pearl street, Nashua, disappeared from his home Saturday night, according to his mother. He is a hoxer and a baseball player of note.

Miss McDermott that saw he fiance Friday night at her home, No. 112 Arlington street. He was then apparently in the best of spirits, she said.

The police of both Nashua and Manchester are searching both cities for clues to his whereabouts.

MME. DUSE PLAYS TO $30,000 HOUSE

New York, Oct. 30.—Calling it the largest crowd that ever witnessed a dramatic performance in Metropolitan Opera House, Gest, American manager of the Italian tragedienne, Eleonora Duse, announced the receipts for the first performance in the Metropolitan Opera House totaled more than $30,000.

Mme Duse

That, also, Mr. Gest said, was a record. Duse's only night engagement on her American tour opened with Ibsen's "The Lady of the Sea." The crowds that packed the opera house were jammed in the aisles and choruses numbers of Italians and French greeted the star with prolonged cheers.

CHARGES BRIBE PLOT AGAINST GETTIGAN

Charges that the late Clinton W. Richardson agreed to give John McDonald, a private detective, $2,000 to put J. Thomas Gettigan behind the bars, were made by Attorney Roscoe Walsworth before Judge Dubuque in Superior Court in support of a motion for a new trial for Gettigan.

Gettigan is serving a sentence of from twelve to fifteen years in State Prison following his conviction last December on a manslaughter charge brought in connection with the death, by arsenic poisoning, of Mrs Lizzie M. Cook of Revere, an aunt of the defendant.

J. T. Gettigan

The verdict of manslaughter, Walsworth charged, was the result of a frame-up on the part of Richardson and his wife, "who wanted to get rid of Gettigan.

Since the sentence of Gettigan in December, 1922, Mr. Walsworth stated that he had secured several affidavits attacking the testimony of James Wright, Frank Milner, William Lindsey and John McDonald, the principal witnesses for the government, who Mr. Walsworth claimed had perjured themselves. Mr. Walsworth said that all he wanted was an opportunity to produce witnesses before the court to substantiate statements contained in the affidavits.

Investigation made since the trial, Mr. Walsworth said, tended to confirm the story told by Gettigan and his wife.

City Hall is somewhat stirred over developments and officials say that they know nothing of the inquiry.

Another phase of the investigation has to do with the payment of $500 to an assistant corporation counsel.

An investigation of abatements of taxes by the Board of Assessors also has been undertaken.

Girls have been placed in the assessor's office and are making a list of all persons who have had their taxes abated.

The recent meeting between the mayor and the finance commission over which the dove of peace fluttered was but a hiatus between investigations.

Recently, it was learned today, a representative of the finance commission made a demand on a city official for record of all transactions of the city council in the payment of claims.

COUNCIL BANS DOGS FROM THE COMMON

The city council placed another barrier for the unleashed pup to hurdle when it passed an order prohibiting wandering dogs from venturing upon the Boston Common or in other public gardens. The order came in the middle of a dull session, and was passed despite the fact that already there is an ordinance to that effect on the city's books. The measure was carried with only three councillors defending the unprotected canine.

by a friend whose telephone number was found in Gallo's pocket.

The body was discovered yesterday afternoon by Miss Elimina Eaton, daughter of William E. Eaton, superintendent of the Lexington town farm.

LURED TO HIS DEATH.

Gallo had been shot to death. A bullet entered his left temple and another went into his right side. The second shot was fired after Gallo had collapsed, the police declare. It took an upward course, coming out near the man's neck.

It is known that Gallo completed his work with a construction company last Saturday and that a stranger Saturday night hired him for another job, to have begun Monday.

He was seen with the stranger, it is believed, by John McEnroe, a youth, on Massachusetts avenue near Cedar street.

There is no construction work under way near the place where Gallo's body was found. Gallo's wife and family live at No. 121 Salem street, this city.

Mik Gallo was a day laborer. A pay envelope found in his pocket was numbered "54" and was marked $27.50. A bullet has pierced it.

Charles J. Richards, who lives within half a mile of the spot where Gallo was found, told the police that he heard several shots previous to discovery of the body.

Gallo left his home at 6 o'clock Monday morning, the police say, and met a stranger who took him to Lexington. His movements from that time onward are a mystery.

Today the police will begin a search of the woods in the vicinity of Cedar street in an effort to find the pistol which slew Gallo. In the meantime, Chief Edward Leavitt and Sergeant James J. Sullivan are in Boston seeking clews in the West End.

WALL STREET TYPISTS PARADE TO AID 'WHITE COLLAR' UNION

New York, Oct. 30—A score of young women paraded before bank doors, Trinity Church and other parts of the financial district in a campaign to enlist office clerks in the Bookkeepers and Stenographers' Union, which has as its objective the enrolling of 400,000 "white collar" workers in New York City.

Employers who were questioned admitted that the drive might reap some results, but added the time was inopportune. It was said that many banks and other financial institutions were cutting their forces and there has been a general movement among the workers recently for higher salaries.

Ernest Bohm, manager of the union, said a fund of $100,000 was under way to finance the white collar union.

Asta of the Pirate Heart!

AT HEART ASTA MORGAN was a pirate. And she came by it honestly. In her veins ran the fierce and fiery blood of Morgan, the buccaneer of former days, who sailed the Spanish main and took by force the things that pleased his fancy—gold and jewels, silks and spice and rum—and the young Spanish noblewoman whose wondrous beauty descended straight to Asta.

But gone were the days of glory. Asta, whose ancestor had ruled the Indies with a bloody, iron hand, lived with her drunken father in a squalid grass-thatched hut upon a squalid jungle-covered West Indian Island, far removed from all the finer things of life that she felt should be hers by right.

Within her burned a fierce resentment at her surroundings and a boundless contempt for the loutish men and slatternly women who made up her world! But the dregs of ignominy were not reached until her father told her that he had traded her in marriage to the man whom she hated most of all the men she knew.

Is it any wonder, then, that when the great white yacht dropped anchor in the little harbor and Bob Wade came ashore, the soul of Asta Morgan burst into flame and she determined to possess these things by right of conquest?

These are the opening incidents of one of the mightiest novels of modern times—"The Girl Who Came Out of the Night," by Rida Johnson Young, author of "Little Old New York," immortalized on the screen by Marion Davies. Everybody in the English speaking world will be reading this serial soon and discussing it.

Never in all your association with men and women nor in books have you come across a girl like Asta Morgan, nor have you heard or read a story such as hers. It begins in Metropolitan for November.

The Life and Work of

Warren G. Harding

A TREMENDOUS HISTORICAL DOCUMENT, By Joe Mitchell Chapple.

The powerful and beautiful work that was begun as an appreciation of the living ends as a tremendous tribute to the dead. Over night, Joe Mitchell Chapple's biography of President Harding became a great historical document of priceless value, to you, your children, and your children's children. Written exactly as Mr. Harding would have had it were he still among us—it is the story of a great American with the heart of a child who, as he said himself, was "just plain folks."

President Harding personally selected Joe Mitchell Chapple as his biographer, and Metropolitan as the magazine best fitted to tell the story of his life and work to the people he loved so well.

Stories Such as These Make Metropolitan the World's Greatest Story Magazine

"What Every Woman Must Learn." The way in which Roger Chandlee lost the love of the wife whom he adored is a tale unique among all the tales you have ever read, and the way in which her love returned in all its radiant glory is as a beautiful dream come true.

Many may doubt that a woman's love could be lost and found again in such a way, but when they have finished reading they'll know that in "What Every Woman Must Learn" Louise Graham Frances has struck a true and beautiful human chord that gets response in "smiling lips and tear wet eyes."

"Behold This Dreamer," By Fulton Oursler. The story of a modern Joseph who, borne into the great city upon a fiery chariot with blood splashed wheels to fulfill his destiny, met Potiphar's crimson wife, from whose blandishment he fled. This powerful and in places terrible story was written in protest against the other Josephs who did not flee. Unlike anything you have ever read. It will thrill you, terrify you, delight you. Read it.

"Her Last Chance," By Dana Byrne. When a girl has had six good chances and missed them—seen them drift away to marry other girls—and then the final, ultimate and best chance of all comes her way, the desperation of the gambler who has thrown his last dollar on the table is nothing compared to the desperate game this girl will play. Here is an absorbing and intensely human story that will haunt your memory for many a long day.

element weather and it was announced on Thursday last that he had contracted septic pneumonia.

Andrew Bonar Law will be known as one of England's leading Premiers. He was born in New Brunswick, Canada, 65 years ago, the son of the Rev. James Law, M. A. In his early youth he removed with his family to Glasgow, where he obtained his early education.

SONS KILLED IN WAR.

His first business venture was with an iron concern. Later he was made a member of the concern, and when he retired from business to enter politics was one of the biggest iron merchants in Scotland.

Golf and chess were his favorite recreations. Nine years before his election to Parliament he married Miss Annie P. Robley of Glasgow, who died in 1909. Four children were born to them, two sons and two daughters.

One daughter, Isabelle, became the wife of Sir General Frederick Sykes of London in 1920. Two sons, Anthony and Lieutenant C. T. Bonar Law, were lost in the war.

The Ex-Premier's daughter, his only near relative left in England, was with him during the last days of his illness.

GAVE UP LEADERSHIP.

When the Canadian Scotsman—Mr. Bonar Law born in New Brunswick, Canada, on September 16, 1858—accepted his high office a year ago his friends well knew that his health was precarious. Outside that close circle it was known only that he had contracted a throat complaint which prevented him from speaking.

Mr. Bonar Law was aware of his own condition and promised the Unionist Party, when he accepted its mandate, that he would resign if and when he found his strength unequal to his work. He gave place to Stanley Baldwin, his Chancellor of the Exchequer, almost before his new government was fairly organized, retiring to the country to safeguard his failing strength.

No official statement as to the nature of Mr. Bonar Law's illness was ever made, but the public drew an inference from the fact that Dr. Thomas Horder, who was attending him when he resigned and who has since been his physician, is one of the foremost cancer specialists.

During the interval spent in the country since his retirement from the Prime Ministership, Mr. Bonar Law had been able to take outdoor walks, and also motored considerably.

The reports of these activities, which seemed to indicate that he was holding his own, had not prepared the public for the news of his comparatively rapid decline.

There has not yet been time for funeral arrangements, but there is every reason to believe it was Mr. Bonar Law's wish to be buried as simply as he lived.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, who succeeded Andrew Bonar Law to the Premiership, paid the following tribute to the dead statesman:

"For him, I am thankful he has been spared further suffering; for his friends, the loss is irreparable. The country will not forget that he sacrificed his life in her service."

During part of 1915 and 1916, Bonar Law served as secretary of state for the colonies. In 1916 he became chancellor of the exchequer, serving two years. In 1918 he was appointed lord of the privy seal, but resigned. He was a member of the British delegation to the Paris peace conference.

Harry Lees to Live at North Beverly Estate, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

IT is true that society at large was hardly made aware of the wedding plans of the former Mrs. Frances LeMoyne Stevenson and Harvey Lee, who were married with the utmost simplicity at the Lee estate in Beverly Farms on Saturday.

But to their immediate acquaintance, the news of their wedding came as anything but a surprise. The slender and always fashionably attired daughter of Mrs. McPheson LeMoyne and Harry Lee had been seen constantly in each other's company for some time, and to their friends their forthcoming marriage was a foregone conclusion.

Not long ago Mrs. Lee was Mrs. Thomas G. Stevenson, and there are two very attractive little children by this marriage—a boy and a girl. During the Summer the then Mrs. Stevenson brought them almost daily to West Beach, where sturdy Thomas Stevenson, Jr.—called "Tee Gee" by his mother—and little Marie could swim and play about to their hearts' content. The Stevensons have been living apart for several years, I believe, though it is only within the past year that they were divorced.

The wedding of Mrs. Stevenson and Mr. Lee was solemnized very quietly at the Beverly Farms estate of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lee. The Rev. Abbott Peterson of Brookline officiated at the ceremonial, which was attended by only the immediate family of the bride and groom.

Upon their return from the wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Lee will go directly to Mr. Lee's home in North Beverly. This place, known as the old Elliot farm, has been extensively remodeled during this Summer, several rooms being added to the house. The past few seasons Mrs. Lee and her children spent at Beverly Farms.

MRS. FREDERIC TUDOR and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Tudor, are sailing tomorrow for Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Tudor will then go to the south of France in the hopes that Mr. Tudor's health will be restored by more moderate climes. The elder Mrs. Tudor will then make her way to Rome.

ONE hears that a corps of Vincent Club members are arranging an indoor country fair, this event is scheduled to take place on January 10th, Mrs. Edwin S. Webster having lent her new home at No. 204 Dartmouth street for the occasion.

Mrs. R. W. Knowles.

Golf-devoted Mrs. Robert W. Knowles (Amy Thorp), the newly-elected president of the club has put an efficient group of girls in charge of the various tables. Of this group are Mesdames John Bolt Charlton Sprague, Ralph Bradley (Eleanor Cabot), Charles W. Hubbard, Jr., and Richard Russell.

..Warsaw, Poland's railway and postal strikes are slowly coming to an end, traffic on the roads being almost normal. No resentment has been shown at the operation of the trains by the military. Some anxiety is felt, about the Socialist Congress which meets soon at Cracow.

BIRTH CONTROL IS URGED TO STOP CRIME

Chicago, Oct. 30.—The only way to solve the problem of increased criminality, caused by a rapid rise in the number of mental defectives in this country, lies in the segregation of the defective delinquents in state and controlled colonies where the protective environment they need can be created, Judge Harry Olson of the Chicago Municipal Court declared in an address to the Birth Control Conference of the Middle Western States meeting here today.

"Under such control there is an abrupt end to criminal depredations and to reproduction," Judge Olson said. "Both great needs of society are met. The need of the individual defective is likewise met, for he is given an opportunity to live to the limit of his powers.

"These farm colonies for defectives will greatly reduce the cost of the defective to society generally and to the State. At present defectives are multiplying as never before in the entire history of the race."

Judge Olson gave an analysis of individual cases where the worst of crimes were committed by mental defectives who should have been recognized in their youth and separated from the rest of society.

"It lies within human power," Judge Olson declared, "to prevent insanity and defectives to such a degree that an outspoken case will be as rare as a case of leprosy."

REVOLT SPREADS IN MONTENEGRO

Paris, Oct. 30.—An insurrection in Montenegro is reported spreading, says a message from Rome quoting a dispatch to the Corriere D'Italia from Bari, an Italian port on the southern Adriatic. The insurgents are reported to have descended into the towns and the movement seems connected with the activities of the Macedonian irregulars.

MRS. PEABODY ATTACKS DRY LAW AGENTS

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody

District Attorney Robert O. Harris

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, general chairman of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, today took issue with United States District Attorney Robert O. Harris on the latter's explanation of the "difficulties" confronting officials charged with enforcing the Volstead law. Mrs. Peabody spoke at the Park Street Church under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

"The trouble we have in Massachusetts with the enforcement of our law," said Mrs. Peabody, "is to be found in the type of men appointed to enforce law and the attitude of the men who appoint them."

Mrs. Peabody explained that Judge Harris in answering his critics had called attention to the fifth and fourteenth amendment of the Constitution which he said must be observed as well as the nineteen h amendment.

"The fifth amendment," said Mrs. Peabody, "shows there must be reasonable cause for search. The other states that a citizen shall not be deprived of his property. The fact is that these two points depend largely upon the disposition and interpretation of the attorney.

"The Constitution is for the whole United States. Under these two amendments which Judge Harris cites, one will find reasonable cause for search while another will refuse to accept trustworthy testimony and refuse search.

On the other point Attorney Harris should make it clear that a man can not be said to own any property that he is holding illegally and in defiance of the law of the land."

LINDSEY ASKS FOR $146,000 TO FIGHT ILLEGAL SURGERY

Denver, Oct. 30.—Judge Ben B. Lindsey has asked the city council for $146,000 with which to conduct his fight to prevent illegal operations, which he recently declared had cut the city's birth rate in half.

He also asked the grand jury to recommend an appropriation for the maternity fund, for the protection of unborn babies and for the Mother's compensation fund to care for destitute mothers.

He also urged the workhouse for husbands who fail to support their families.

Judge Lindsey Saturday night issued a statement in which he declared he would establish a birth control clinic in connection with his court unless he was provided with funds with which to combat the illegal operation menace.

LEADER'S EYES CAPTIVATED LYNN GIRL

Mrs. Jennie Bragg

Mrs. Jennie M. Bragg, Lynn beauty parlor proprietor, who alleges in her divorce suit that her husband had married a second time, swearing that she was dead, fell in love "at first sight" with her violinist husband, as she saw him perform as the leader of an orchestra in a Lynn theatre.

"I was picturing my ideal one night as I entered a theatre," Mrs. Bragg said. "When the musicians came in I looked at each as he came into the pit. One man's eyes caught and held my attention. He was glorious in my eyes. He was the leader of the orchestra and was none other than my Harry."

Mrs. Bragg is listed in the Lynn directory as a widow, giving the impression that her husband was dead. The latter, she alleges, has married again without the formality of a divorce, swearing that she was dead.

"So it appears," the young wife said, "that we are both dead. But before I get through he will wish that he was really dead."

3 HURT IN TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS

Two women and one man were slightly injured in auto accidents in Jamaica Plain and Mattapan today. Dennis Leburn and his wife, Nellie, were hit by an automobile while waiting for a street car on Blue Hill avenue, near Abbot street. They received slight cuts. Mrs. Edith Glover of Pleasant street, Hyde Park, was cut about the arms when he automobile in which she was rid ng was hit by another at Arborway and South street, Jamaica Plain.

AUTOIST HURT GOING AFTER STOLEN CAR

Joseph Brossard of No. 111 Boston street, Somerville, in an auto crashed over an embankment on the Newburyport Turnpike today while hurrying to Danvers police station to aid in identification of a stolen car. He is at Lynn hospital severely injured.

Brossard and Isaac Berley of No. 732 Cambridge street, Cambridge, went to Saugus to visit a friend. When they were about to return home Berley's car was missing.

The police were notified. Later State Constabulary reported they had a machine answering the description at Danvers.

Police believe he was blinded by approaching headlights of another machine, misjudged his road and crashed over the embankment.

The men who had the stolen machine were: Michael Generazzo of Halstead street, John Falacca of Marlow street and Dimitrie Calacicesse of Lincoln street, all of Saugus.

the Jews in the world wouldn't go there. All the Scotchmen in the world don't go to Edinburgh, all the Irishmen to Dublin, or all the Welsh to the unpronounceable, unspellable place where Lloyd George was born.

JEWS, IRISH, Scotch and Welsh have important business all over the world. But Jews, like the other races mentioned, ought to have one central homeland, sending out energetic, ambitious youth to conquer opportunity in every country.

PALESTINE, undoubtedly is the best place, because of historical associations.

The much discussed danger of "Arabs in overwhelming numbers" is exaggerated. The Jews themselves, originally Bedouins, of a fierce, fighting character, need not fear any of their Semitic brothers of Asia.

POINCARE WARNS the approaching conference that it must under no circumstances try to cut down the size of Germany's debt, but must try to find some way of making payment possible (That means old Uncle Sam.) Monsieur Poincare, as he speaks, sheds tears freely. That must remind Germany of the walrus and the carpenter.

"I weep for you," the walrus said, "I deeply sympathize." With sobs and tears he sorted out those of the largest size, holding his pocket handkerchief before his streaming eyes.

MONSIEUR LOUCHEUR, ablest financial mind in France, tells Americans, "You must put out of your minds all idea of getting the money that France owes you. Payment is impossible. Consider the stupendous sum France owes you."

The amount that France owes us is a little over four billion dollars.

LOUCHEUR may be right, payment may be impossible.

But this puzzles you. Poincare, consenting to a conference, says there mustn't be any suggestion of cutting down the amount he thinks Germany should pay. That amount is thirty billions.

If France can't pay "the stupendous sum" of four billions, how can Germany pay more than seven times as much? Will the world conference answer that question? Ordinary arithmetic won't answer it.

QUIT BACHELOR DINNER TO FIGHT FIRE

Miss Davies' young millionaire fiance, W. H. Vanderbilt, was at a bachelor dinner given in her honor when the fire alarm sounded. Whereupon he drove his private fire apparatus to the blaze near his estate outside Newport, R. I.

MISS EMILY DAVIES

Newport, R. I., Oct. 30 (Universal).—With the tails of his evening coat flying and his face reddened with anxiety, William H. Vanderbilt, youthful millionaire, raced his special fire apparatus in answer to a fire siren.

The heir to Oakland Farm, the beautiful Portsmouth country estate, left his bachelor dinner celebration like a shot to go to the fire. The dinner was in honor of his fiancee, Miss Emily Davies, whom he will marry in New York next Thursday.

Beside him on the big red fire truck sat Robert L. Clarke, one of the guests at the dinner, who received a thrill at every turn in the road.

Mr. Vanderbilt had installed the private fire fighting apparatus because there have been thirty-three fires near his estate this year. His department consists of butlers, gardeners, servants, stablemen and others on the estate.

318 ARRESTS IN BROOKLINE FOR DRUNKENNESS IN A YEAR

The annual report of the Brookline Municipal Court contains statistical incongruities for the "wets" and the "drys" to interpret.

The year ending September 30 shows that there were 1,225 arrests, of which 128 were juvenile, a slight decrease over last year.

This year, only 31 search warrents or liquor were issued against 47 for last year, but there were 318 arrests for drunkenness this year against only 255 [illegible] year. And this year, there were [illegible] arrests for non-support, . . . 18 for last year.

KILLS CHARGING BUCK DEER AT 10 FEET WITH BIRDSHOT

Winsted, Oct. 30.—His unerring aim saved the life of Elliott S. Bronson, in charge of the State Forestry Commission' lookout station on Dennis Hill, in South Norfolk, the property of Dr. Frederick S. Dennis of New York City, when he shot to death a charging 200-pound buck deer.

The animal was within 10 feet of him when, quickly lifting his gun to his hip, without time to get it to his shoulder, Bronson pulled the trigger, the charge of No. 6 shot entering the deer's throat. The animal dropped in its tracks and Bronson ended its life with a[illegible] charge.

Examination of the carcass revealed that two birdshot had penetrated the jugular vein.

MELLON IN PENN. RUM CRUSADE

Treasury Head Orders Probe of Liquor Evils Charged by Governor Pinchot

Washington, Oct. 30.—Under orders from Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau today launched a special investigation of all breweries and distilleries in Pennsylvania, although officials of the treasury insisted that plans for this inquiry were drafted prior to the pending prohibition enforcement row between Mellon and Governor Pinchot.

The Treasury Department, it was explained, is to make an entirely new listing of all liquor plants now in operation so that the government may have an accurate check-up on the alcoholic production.

Secretary Mellon wants a careful check made of the output of each plant, the weekly sales and the disposition of the beer or whiskey after it has gone out of the hands of the manufacturer.

Official Washington was of the opinion today that the controversy between Governor Pinchot and Secretary Mellon would not end with the initial exchange of charges and counter-charges relative to the alleged "breakdown" of prohibition enforcement in Pennsylvania.

It was fully expected that Pinchot would have something to say in reply to Mellon's statement that the Pennsylvania laws, coupled with Federal statutes and regulations, gave ample power for keeping the State dry.

Police say the railing of the piazza gave way.

Mitchell was attended by Dr. John R. Marshall of Curtis street before being sent to the hospital. He is unmarried and lives at No. 9 Huron avenue, North Cambridge.

Bank Roll Only $2

Mrs. Pauline K. Rodman

Her 12-year-old husband sued for divorce says she promised to set him up in business, and that is why he married her. But, he says, when he asked her for the money she only had $2.

SUED BY LANDLORD.

"My landlord sued me once for damages to a porch rail and a chandelier inflicted by Mrs. Palm when she hurled flatirons at me," said little Mr. Palm. "My wife is a strong woman."

Judge Brondhurst straightway gave him a decree nisi, which in plain English means that he'll have a final divorce in six months.

The second phrase of the material inharmony that exists between nine-year-old Wilfred Rodman of Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, and Mrs. Pauline K. Rodman was played in court today.

$2 IN BANK ROLL.

Rodman is seeking a divorce because he's too young to be married, and besides Mrs. Rodman had only $2 in the bank, he discovered to his financial sorrow shortly after the wedding.

He charged that she induced him to wed her by promising to set him up in business.

"I never gave him any money or offered to," said Mrs. Rodman. "I never had much, but that little was about all there was around the house. He told me he was twenty-two years old. He persuaded me to marry him by telling me that he would come into a large fortune soon."

Her attorneys were preparing to file briefs today.

4 SPRINGFIELD COPS INVOLVED IN RUM SCANDAL

Springfield, Oct. 30.—A sweeping investigation of Springfield's "liquor cops" which threatens to disrupt the department probably will be conducted by a special grand jury, it was learned today.

At least fifteen policemen are said to be under suspicion, and it is expected that their names will be added to four already under charges of conduct unbecoming officers.

They were frequenters of liquor dives, it is charged, while they still were in uniform.

Water street, which belies its name in the liquid that its former saloons and stores now sell at bootleg prices, is the geographical center of the scandal.

District Attorney Charles H. Wright who is in Pittsfield trying a murder case, telephoned today that he would return to Springfield in a few days prepared to take up his booze investigation.

Police Chief Quill [illegible] was learned New York detectives operating as spotters on the dives gathering evidence against policemen who frequent them.

It is said that the story of the booze graft in this city will have devious political ramifications.

Hearings in the cases against Patrolmen Arthur C. Long, Charles T. Long, Charles J. Murphy and Reserve Officer Charles D. McConnell will be November 12 before the Board of Alderman and the police commission.

Rum Raid on Phone Tip

Newark, N. J., Oct. 30.—Acting on anonymous telephone information, local police today seized a truck loaded with 350 cases of whiskey on the outskirts of the city and arrested the driver and his helper.

WEARY OF DODGING MISSILES

Husband Seeking for Divorce Says Wife Threw Everything at Him but Stove

It was April Fool's Day, last year, but 200-pound Mrs. Barbara Palm wasn't fooling when she hit 115-pound Lars Palm with everything but the kitchen stove, all because he asked for $1 to pay his carfare to and from work during the week.

This was his testimony today before Judge Brondhurst in Suffolk County Superior Divorce Court. Mrs. Palm, he said, used the following weapons effectively:

Dishes, all kinds.
Kitchen utensils, without favor to any.
Flatiron.
Shovel.
Poker.
Butcher knife.

The kitchen stove was nailed down, he explained sadly.

WOMAN PROVES SHE IS GOOD CARPENTER

MRS. SYDNEY L. BARR

Brockton, Oct. 30.—West Bridgewater, just over the line from Brockton, claims the only honest-to-goodness woman carpenter in this part of the country.

Mrs. Sydney L. Barr is helping her husband complete their sixth house, having worked on each one and, according to her better half, more credit is due her than to him for the finished structures.

Mrs. Barr is no imitation carpenter—she is the real thing. Although she doesn't commonly do it, she never hesitates to don knickers and jumper and tackle any detail of construction.

When the Barrs purchase a lot, Mr. Barr dons overalls or knickers and taking a shovel does her share of the work. Then she helps lay the stone. When the foundation beams are laid in place by Mr. Barr she is ready with hammer and spike.

"There are several reasons that I love the work," he said to the Boston American. "It helps out the housing shortage just a bit and gives some deserving person a chance to own a home, for my husband and I can sell a house cheaper when built on our plan."

STABBING VICTIM IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Daniel Moores of No. 1015 Tremont street, Roxbury, was stabbed under the heart early today during an altercation with Edward Richardson of Northampton street in front of the Walter Johnson Club in Washington street, Roxbury. Moores is in the City Hospital in a dangerous condition. Richardson, who was known as "Shorty" Brown, is held as a suspicious person. The police say he has a record. Several women saw the affray. Both men are colored.

DR. H. F. STECKER, MATHEMATICIAN, DIES

State College, Oct. 30.—Dr. H. Freeman Stecker, reputed to be one of the seven greatest mathematicians in the world, died in a Baltimore hospital today. He had been professor of mathematics at Pennsylvania State College for twenty years.

TRUNK WITH 34 BOMBS FOUND IN BARCELONA

Barcelona, Oct. 30. (I.N.S.)—A trunk containing 34 bombs, tools for bomb manufacture and explosives was found in the Bordeta quarter today. The trunk is believed to belong to an anarchist.

IRISH TO DEPORT JIM LARKIN

Dublin, Oct. 30.—The Free State government is contemplating the deportation of Jim Larkin the labor agitator, who returned to Ireland when released from prison in America. Larkin will be shipped to England.

Jim Larkin

The decision to get rid of Larkin follows his attempt to organize a general strike in favor of the release of the hunger striking Republican prisoners.

James Larkin wrote President Cosgrave offering to settle all labor disputes in the Irish Free State if the chief executive would release political prisoners.

President Cosgrave returned a reply by expressing his disbelief in the ability or desire of Mr. Larkin to settle any dispute."

GUIDE FOR 40 YEARS ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Walter Gates, fifty-five years old, an Adirondack guide of forty years' experience, was shot through the heart yesterday near Cranberry Lake Village, while hunting a drive of 18 hunters when two bucks appeared over a line. Several men fired and Gates dropped dead.

MEDIUMS RESORT TO BLACK ART

Investigator Finds There Is No Bond Between Living and the Dead

New York, Oct. 30.—Exhaustive research over a period of many months into the realm of spiritism and psychic phenomena has led J. Malcolm Bird, secretary of the committee of American scientists that has been investigating such phenomena for more than a year, to two definite conclusions.

He finds no evidence that communication between the living and the dead has been established, nor any demonstration of the survival or activity on the physical plane of deceased humans.

On the other hand, he declares that some of the phenomena he has witnessed were genuinely psychic, and that telepathy, or subconscious communication between minds, does exist.

PSYCHIC PHENOMENA.

Mr. Bird, formerly a professor at Columbia University, has given virtually all of his time in the last year to this work. As an official of the scientific committee he has taken part in many test seances.

Much of the investigation carried on by Mr. Bird was done in connection with research of The Scientific American. Early this year he went to Europe and sat with the leading mediums in England and in France and in Germany.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle introduced him in England, and he spent much time in seance circles.

In this country he has had seances with Ada Besinnet in Toledo, George Valentine of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Mrs. Josie Stewart of Cleveland.

Through all his investigations Mr. Bird says he has tried to act merely as a scientist and with a wide open mind, but speaking of what he calls his "emotional preference," he says it makes no difference to him whether physical phenomena do or do not occur, but it does make a difference through what agency they occur.

His emotional preference is therefore, he says, "against any explanation involving the action, on this sphere, of departed humans."

"Being all I am to discount this preference," he continues, "I still am unable to find that anything whatever has occurred in my presence that is in the least degree demonstrative of survival and communication and activity on the physical plane by deceased humans.

DISCOVERED ENEMY FRAUDS.

"Beyond one seance, I must say that I find nothing in my experience which, of itself, would constitute very strong evidence against the spirit hypothesis.

"But, bringing all my experience together, I regard the probabilities as overwhelmingly in favor of some other explanation for whatever psychic phenomena, subjective and objective alike, may occur."

Against this conclusion and subjected to the many reservations which Mr. Bird admits he puts in its way he says:

"Of all the physical phenomena which I have witnessed, there are many for whose fraudulent production, under the given conditions, I can without serious difficulty see a way.

"There are many more for whose production by fraud I can still see a way, but only with serious difficulty—that is to say, as far as I can see, to account for them in this fashion one would have to make assumptions so far-fetched that the question would arise whether they were not more objectionable than the outright hypothesis that some psychic force was at work.

"It is undergrood that I do not know all there is to know about fraud and sleight of hand. But making due allowances for this, it is my best judgment that of physical manifestations that baffled me altogether or forced me to make objectionable assumptions in the effort to explain them as due to fraud, I have seen enough to establish a good degree of probability that some of them were genuine psychic phenomena."

McINTYRE AND HEATH SCORE HIT AT KEITH'S

McIntyre and Heath, famous blackface comedians of "The Ham Tree" and "Georgia Minstrels" fame, return to Boston this week as headliners at B. F. Keith's Theatre with a new line of chatter, which sets the house into an uproar. Vivian Holt and Myrtle Leonard, in a song recital, are also featured.

Emile Nathaan and Julia Sully, in a song and dance number; Arthur Lloyd, card tricks; Ed Conrad, pianist, aided by B. Conrad and "Charlotie"; James Burke and Eleanor Durkin, in a "tete-a-tete" in song, and Mons. Besson and company in a dramatic sketch, "The Broad Minded Woman," are also on the bill.

NEW SHYLOCK IS PORTRAYED BY WARFIELD

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

If there is any novelty, or even reward, in plunging into Shakespeare after twenty years or more of useful and, for the most part, happy service in the drama of modern writers, you may be sure that David Warfield's little excursion with Shylock will drain it to the last ounce.

The Shylock held before you at the Colonial last evening revealed Warfield in the joy of achievement—the achievement of an ambition he has held through many seasons of varying fortune.

PRETENTIOUS PRODUCTION.

From Jewish comedy in the old Weber and Fields days to the most extravagant and pretentious Shakespearean production the stage has ever known may, or may not, furnish enough novelty to make the reward seem adequate, for the reward chiefly will be found in Warfield's sincerely artistic endeavor to provide a Shylock of easy understanding and the public's appreciation of the effort.

Like Hamlet, Shylock has been, and remains, the aim of ambitious actors, but unlike Hamlet the Jew of "The Merchant of Venice" moves about in as unlikely and preposterous a story as ever fell from a dramatist's pen.

Shylock - not a popular person, and the actor who ventures alone with him upon the stage must win his audience through his own effort—his own talent in creating artificial emotions and making them register.

It has been a fashion to consider Shakespearean interpretations not so much for their quality as for their direction, and something of a special interest has been worked up over the possibilities of this Warfieldian interpretation.

RELENTLESS SHYLOCK.

As he was caught in the glare of the lights at the Colonial last night, Mr. Warfield revealed a hard, relentless money lender—a kind of batting Shylock. He did not cringe, as others have done; there was no diffidence or doubt in his action. He was bold, harsh and determined—a Christian hater who knew what he was doing and stuck to the job to see that it was properly finished.

Mr. Warfield's performance was both artistic and intelligent, because Warfield himself is possessed of both artistry and intelligence, and besides, also, no actor of ability could fail to give a fairly good account of himself in the surroundings set up by David Belasco for his favorite player.

CONVINCING ACTING.

Suppressed emotion has always been a Warfield trait—perhaps the most useful and effective of his many artistic wares—and it carried him to convincing heights last evening. He presented a Shylock that will hold its own with any you are likely to meet through the season.

For Portia Mr. Warfield had Mary Servoss, a careful reader of lines and an actress of engaging personality. Others who served faithfully and well were Fuller Mellish, Edwin Brandt, Jerome Lawler and Bett Murray.

SCOLLAY SQUARE — "Broken Hearts of Broadway" news and comedy reels and five acts of vaudeville.

CAPITOL—"Going Up," starring Douglas MacLean, news and comedy reels, and vaudeville features.

ANNA PAVLOWA IN EFFECTIVE DANCES

By ZOE FABER

The incomparable Pavlowa made her first appearance of the season last night at the Boston Opera House, opening a week's engagement. With her, as before, was Laurent Novikoff, her premier danseur.

The most striking thing of the evening was the "Oriental Impressions" gathered by the danseuse while recently in the Far East. These are particularly effective in light, color and the dances evolved.

The Hindu wedding was far more effective than the Japanese sketch, which grew monotonous through repetition. It is too bad the way the music was handled. Music of this sort demands far more skilful playing than it received at the hands of the orchestra under Theodore Stier. As it was, there remained nothing but a lot of disconnected sounds that meant little, if anything.

The ballet "Amarilla" was beautifully costumed, and good contrast was made between the gentry and the gypsies. Pavlowa's impassioned dancing was applauded long and loud by the audience.

Of the divertissements, "The Swan" by Pavlowa, of course, stood out, but as a close second there was the exquisitely beautiful "Bolero" of Novikoff. His dancing is well-nigh perfect and his abandon when he leaps into the air, fascinating.

The program will be changed every night this week, including two matinees, Wed nesday and Saturday.

CODMAN SQUARE—Priscilla Dean in "Drifting" and "The Man From Glengarry."

OLYMPIA—Douglas MacLean, in "Going Up" and five vaudeville acts. News and Comedy reels.

BOWDOIN SQUARE—"Three Wise Fools," "Red Lights" and five vaudeville features.

COMEDY AND MUSIC IN SHOW AT CASINO

A delightful mixture of comedy and music, presented by a talented group of comedians and a bevy of pretty girls, was the burlesque feature at Waldron's Casino yesterday. The burlesque was entitled "Temptations of 1923." In addition to this burlesque there was a generous program of vaudeville and motion pictures in the continuous performance.

Danny Murphy and Flossie Everett are the featured players in "Temptations of 1923," Murphy is popular with Boston audiences for his past achievements as a funmaker. Miss Everett last night proved herself a singing and dancing comedienne of remarkable ability.

One of the most entertaining specialties in the show was the program of bagpipe selections by Jamie Clark, who for nine years was pipe major with the Kilties Band.

Appearing in Hub

ANNA PAVLOWA

With her famous Ballet Revue, the incomparable danseuse is playing a week's engagement at the Boston Opera House.

Plays That Remain

HOLLIS—Final week of "Thank U," A rural comedy of distinct New England flavor.

TREMONT—Lenore Ulric in "Kiki." A brisk comedy of life behind the scenes in Paris.

WILBUR—"Sally, Irene and Mary," with Eddie Dowling as its comedian and Louise Brown its dancer.

MAJESTIC—"Caroline," an operetta, in which Myrtle Schaaf shows you how to make a good voice behave.

SELWYN—"The Old Soak," with Harry Beresford, in an amusing characterization of a steady drinker.

PLYMOUTH—"The Cat and the Canary," showing how easy it is to put an audience on edge.

SHUBERT—"The Dancing Girl," a Winter Garden show, made up of girls, comedians and dancers. Final week.

Remaining Films

TREMONT TEMPLE—"The Hunchback of Notre Dame," with Lon Chaney and a distinguished cast.

PARK—Norma Talmadge in "Ashes of Vengeance," a romantic thriller of days when knights were bold.

VAMP PLAY AT ST. JAMES IS WELL DONE

There have been about one thousand stories and perhaps more than one hundred plays written around the saying "there is a sucker born every minute," and in "Lawful Larceny," this week's presentation of the Boston Stock Company at the St. James Theatre, the sucker is shown raised to the nth degree.

"Lawful Larceny" was originally presented in New York, and then it was filmed with Nita Naldi as the "vamp" and Hope Hampton as the "sucker's" wife. At the St. James, Viola Roach is the "vamp" par excellence and Adelyn Bushnell is the wife of the man who has been vamped.

The play hinges around the theory that if one woman steals another's husband and his wealth, then it is perfectly fair for the other woman to get back what originally belonged to her, in other words it is "lawful larceny."

Walter Gilbert, as Andrew Dorsey, is the "sucker." He is a real sucker at first and then realizes that he has sold more than his birthright for a mess of potage. To get back what has been stolen from her, Miss Bushnell works through a prologue and three acts and there is not a dull minute during that whole period.

PLAY OF THRILLS AT THE SOMERVILLE

"Thumbs Down" had its first performance at the Somerville Theatre last evening. The play is by Myron C. Fagan, author of "Bella Donna," "Heathens of the U. S. A." and "The Dividing Line." It is a drama of thrills, unexpected situations and opportunities for all kinds of good acting. The work of Ann McDonald stood out as a singularly complete and satisfactory performance. Not far behind in merit was the performance of Bernard Nadell, who played the leading male role.

Coming Events

Ina Claire in "The Awful Truth" is announced as the attraction at the Hollis next week.

"Mary Jane," a Hammerstein musical play, will move into the Shubert next Monday.

"Not So Fast" will be the offering at Mr. Giles' St. James Theatre next week.

"Mary," a George M. Cohan musical play, will be given at the Somerville theatre next week.

"Little Nellie Kelly" will be the next attraction at the Tremont, arriving Monday, November 12th.

'HAPPY DAYS' AT GAYETY PROVES A WINNER

A burlesque with a snappy cast is what the patrons of the Gayety Theatre are enjoying this week in "Happy Days," which played to two happy and large audiences yesterday. The show moved with great speed, the music was catchy and the entertainers clever. Will H. Ward in his original character, was just as funny as ever and he had no trouble in keeping the audience in good humor. He had a capital running mate in Frank R. Murphy, a versatile comedian.

Kitty Glasco, with her winning personality and exceptionally good singing, captivated her audiences from the very start. Mildred Campbell, Fay Tunis, Mabel McCloud and Gladys Darling, among other principals, did not a little in contributing to the success of the performance.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

A Delightful Romance with an Unusual Heroine

This Story Will Be Shown Soon in Motion Pictures Starring Marion Davies at One of Your Favorite Theatres in Boston

THE STORY SO FAR:

Larry Delavan, a fashionable young man in the days when Fulton was perfecting his steamboat in New York, expects that his stepfather will leave him his large fortune. When John Jacob Astor reads the will he discovers that all the property goes to a nephew, Patrick O'Day, in Ireland. Astor is made trustee and Larry guardian of the heir. Delavan is terribly disappointed. The O'Day family is about to be evicted from their poor home in Ireland, when a strange solicitor appears and informs them of their good fortune. Patricia, disguised as her brother, who dies on the trip, and her father, arrive in New York. Delavan becomes interested in Robert Fulton's steamboat and promises $10,000 of the expenses. Pat acts queerly for a boy but Delavan does not suspect. Pat's father dies, taking her swear never to reveal her identity to De'avan. Pat tries to get the $10,000 from Astor for De'avan.

Larry tweaks the ear of Pat (Marion Davies) after the latter has made light of Ariana

LARRY, before them all, was a little embarrassed; a little slow to take his cue. But that was too much for Pat's good resolutions.

"You sang without encouragement the last time!" she said.

Irving laughed out; even Betty Schuyler, with all her young girl's adoration for Ariana, smiled. But Larry frowned and Ariana was furious.

"I shall never be able to sing with this impossible child about to distract me!" she said.

Larry seized Pat's arm, but she was not to be suppressed now.

"You needn't worry!" she said viciously. "You'll never be able to sing anyway, whether I'm about or not."

Ariana turned crimson with rage; for a moment it looked as if she meant to strike Pat. But before anything more could be said or done Larry dragged Pat away, and Pat, struggling, kicking, protesting, everything but her scorn and jealous hatred of Ariana forgotten, had to go. Larry was angry, but he had himself well in hand.

"Look here, Pat," he said, when they were in the garden, "this must stop. I won't have you being so damned impudent to Mistress de Puyster."

"You won't, is it? Then tell her not to be so damned impudent to me!" cried Pat.

"That will do, Pat," said Larry, quietly. "Go home now, and to bed. I'm sorry I let you come. You're not to be trusted."

Pat, stricken suddenly, looked up at him.

"I—I'm sorry, Larry," she said. "Really and truly—I wouldn't have said anything if I'd thought—I wouldn't go to bring shame on you—"

"Go home," said Larry. She couldn't see that the corners of his mouth were twitching, ever so faintly; his tone was stern and unforgiving.

"But—I'll promise to be good"—

"Go home!"

Reluctantly Pat took a step; Larry stood, his arms folded, watching her.

"Ah, now, Larry—don't be after sendin' me home like a baby from the party"—

"If you don't want to be treated like a baby you mustn't act like one. Go home."

"I—I don't want to go home"—

From behind them came the sound of a few introductory chords on a piano. Larry turned; saw that Ariana was seated at the instrument.

"Go home at once!" he said. "Stop arguing. At once—do you hear me?"

And Pat knew, now, that she must obey. Larry turned away and went back into the house. And, disconsolate, a little ashamed of herself, but not enough to make her sorry for what she had done, Pat walked across the garden to the gate. Reilley was there; she saw at once that he had been listening, from the way he smiled as he took his long pipe from his mouth. That was too much.

"You mind your business, you good for nothing Irishman, you!" she said.

"Tis quiet you must be now, boy," he said. "You'd not be interferin' with the music Mr. Larry admires so much, would you?"

For now Ariana's voice was lifted in song, and came to them. And Reilley, affecting to be much impressed, put his finger to his lips and stood in the attitude of one listening intently.

"You're all fools!" cried Pat, and burst into a storm of weeping as she ran past him and into the house.

Reilley, left alone, shrugged his shoulders. The night was one of calm and peaceful beauty. The moon made the garden as bright as day; it was so warm that in the Schuyler house all the windows were open.

Every sound came out; Reilley, standing by the gate, filling his pipe, packing the tobacco down with meticulous care, could look into the ball room and see, without any difficulty at all, the corner, near the window, where the musicians had been placed.

Ariana was at the piano; the group that had gathered about her when she took her place had opened a way for Larry, and he stood close beside her now, looking down at her with his admiration plain in every look, every movement.

"The boy must be whipped—but he has the right of it!" said old Reilley, to himself. "I think it a shame to see Mr. Larry throwin' himself away on yon painted piece of foolishness!"

Ariana was singing, and the old Irishman listened, with amusement in his eyes and an ironic smile curving his mouth. Her voice was thin; she sang with an affectation that spoiled any effect the trumpery music might have had; she struck more wrong notes than eight anne as her fingers stumbled through the accompaniment.

But in this new city of a new land she represented the authority of old ways, settled ways. She and her song were fresh from London, and anything that came from London must be right —so New York, far more provincial than it dared to admit, believed still, in those days. Change was the spirit that accounted for the empty pedestal that Reilley, by turning his head, could see in the centre of Bowling Green; the pedestal on which, not so long ago there had stood a statue of His Most Christian Majesty, George the Third, of Hanover and England. Patriots had tied a rope about that statue once, and dragged it down, and bullets made from it had sent Hessians about their business.

And now Reilley, with all his memories of Washington and Greene, Lee and Schuyler, the great Philip of that name, had to listen to a mincing miss casting the spell of London upon the New York that had seen that great moment!

Reilley, with the philosophy of his years, watched the comedy that was being played at the piano. Ariana sang to Larry; all her arts and graces were for him. He looked embarrassed to be singled out before that company —and plea— Ah, well! Reilley sighed. He could tell Larry, if he would—But to what use? What lover ever listened yet to those who cast disparagement upon the lady of his sighs? What would he, must, Reilley could only hope that Larry's poverty would, in the end, lead Ariana to seek elsewhere.

True, she had enough and more than enough, or would have when her inheritance was hers, to make up for Larry's lack of means. But Reilley had lived long, seen much, and made his observations, and he had never found that wealth looked kindly at dalliance with poverty.

Old Jan de Puyster would have his say before it came to wedding bells at old Trinity, up where Wall Street ran to the river. Time enough to worry when he must. But of one thing Reilley was sure: Mistress de Puyster, become Mrs. Delavan if she would, should never be his mistress!

A sound behind him made him turn. And, to his amazement, he saw Pat, her harp in her hand, coming toward him, stealing softly among the flowers. She came slowly, hesitatingly; she looked at Reilley, as if she were in doubt as to whether or not he would try to make her go back.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

HAVE YOU LEARNED HOW YOU LEARN?

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
(Former President of the American Medical Association.)

"I HAVE learned to swim," writes my eight-year-old grandson from his camp.

"I have learned to fly fish." "I have learned Sanskrit." "I have learned to cut cocktails."

You may similarly announce a thousand or a million other things that you have learned.

But how have you learned them?

What is the machinery by which you learn things and how do you run the machine?

Let us begin at the beginning. At the moment of your birth you had some instincts, but you didn't know anything, although you were provided with the machinery by which to learn things.

The machine began working at once.

The contact of cool air with your skin telephoned the news of a change of temperature; that cool air was cool to your brain, and your brain telephoned it back to your lungs and to the muscles of the chest, and you took a deep breath.

Then you emitted a whoop.

You acquired that information through the special sense of feeling or sensation.

Then you were put to the breast, sucked by interest and learned through the special sense of taste that milk was good.

That's the way you began learning things, and you have never learned anything in any other way from that day to this.

Remember that all knowledge that is in your brain had to get in, and it had to get in from the outside. The only avenues for getting in are the five senses: feeling, tasting, seeing, hearing, smelling.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"YOU'RE as taut as a fiddle string, Anne. Don't strain yourself to the breaking point. Don't be resentful, dear, because I can't believe in Neal. But I believe in you, and what's more I believe you will find the boy before long. One failure doesn't mean anything, and it's not worthy of you to give i nto your first discouragement."

"My first discouragement!" I laughed harshly. "You seem to forget the hideous discouragements I've been facing all along—trying to win you all over to see Neal as I know him to be. You've never stood by. It's too late now——"

"Anne!" cried Jim. "Sweetheart, doesn't my love and sympathy mean anything? Don't you love me?"

"Let's not talk about that tonight," I said wearily. "I'm not thinking of—love now. I'm too tired and unhappy to think at all."

"Perhaps a little change would do you good," suggested Jim.

"Yes—" I answered eagerly. 'I think I'll ask Aunt May to let me come to her for the week-end. It's so peaceful—in her garden."

"Fine" agreed Jim. "Just the thing."

"All right, I'll go," I murmured, wondering if it wouldn't be easier for Jim if I were away for a time.

"Shall I go with you?" Would they want to have me?" asked Jim.

"Are you—free, Jim?" I asked feeling my cheeks crimson as I put the question.

Jim hesitated for a moment. Then he declared firmly:

"I'm free to do anything you ask of me."

The evasion in his tone made me sure he had other plans he though,t he ought to change. I could almost hear him going to Edith Gregory and explaining—

"Never mind" I jerked quickly. "I think I'll be best off with just Aunt May. I'll be all right with a little—mothering."

"Right-o!" said Jim, heartily.

There was unmistakable relief in his tone.

Aunt May welcomed my suggestion that I spend the week-end with her so warmly that I began to feel comforted at once by the mother-tone in her voice. I filled the days between with work which prevented my brooding over the first great failure in my search for Neal. Jim insisted on taking me to the theatre one evening and to a roof-garden for dinner the next. I met his courtesy half way and we skimmed the surface of things amiably.

Saturday noon Aunt May herself motored in to get me. Her attitude of love and understanding plus her faith in Neal and her deeply religious belief that I'd find him and all would work out well, restored a great part of my lost poise.

By the time "Uncle Max," as it was increasingly easy to call Max Headly, came home for dinner, I was feeling better than I'd dared hope. The peace and love and tender reverence in Aunt May's home smoothed me so that I slept peacefully for the first time in many nights.

NOTRE DAME LOOMS UP LIKE WONDER ELEVEN OF SEASON

SOUTH BEND BOYS MAY LAND NATIONAL TITLE

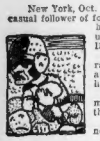
By THOMAS L. COMMISKEY.

New York, Oct. 30.—A wonder eleven, indeed, is Notre Dame. The casual follower of football knows it is a great team, of course, but just how great is something for the experts to try to figure out. Right now it may be hazarded that Notre Dame looks to be the class of the country.



For a long stretch, Notre Dame has been writing rather big in the annals of the sport, coming East for about a decade to teach army football and playing high class elsewhere.

It was the Army game, however, which was the medium of putting the eleven from South Bend on the main scroll of gridiron doings.

Now their fame is as far-reaching as the continent.

During the Christmas holidays they will probably play the championship team of the Pacific coast at Los Angeles.

If Notre Dame wins the remainder of its scheduled games, it is thought likely the athletic board and faculty will give the team permission to go there, as Coach Knute Rockne favors it.

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP LIKELY FOR NOTRE DAME

It is quite conceivable, in fact rather probable, Notre Dame will go through their highly ambitious schedule undefeated. Then, if they should conquer the leading army on the far coast, they would be national champions.

Notre Dame winds up its regular season with Butler at South Bend and Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh. It should win both games handily, although Carnegie may furnish considerable opposition.

It isn't so long ago the "big three"—Yale, Harvard and Princeton—dominated football interest not only in the east but nationally.

But no more. Rising up in brilliance far outshining them in most instances are several other teams, in particular Penn State and West Virginia.

Cornell had a splendid record last year, going unbeaten, but its engagements were easy in comparison to the other two teams.

Syracuse is another team to be mentioned along with Penn State and West Virginia. And now Dartmouth, by slaughtering Harvard, seems to be on its way.

Of course, the "big three" has great hosts of followers, but the other teams are steadily gaining in popularity.

INJURIES FORCE TWO EAGLES TO REST

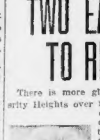
There is more gloom on University Heights over the loss of some of the best men of the Eagle team by injuries than over the result of the Marquette game.



Joe Kosiowski

Both Beaver and Bill Cronin are suffering from leg injuries, and although Beaver may be fit for the Georgetown game, there is little hope of Cronin's starting.

Beaver was removed from the game in the first period with a badly wrenched knee, but from present indications he will be in the opening lineup.

Bill Cronin's weak ankle was again put out of commission, and an X-ray has been taken to determine the extent of the injury. He may be forced to join the greatly missed Ward, and watch the other Eagle conflicts from the sidelines.

This week therefore will become a struggle for backfield positions. In the early part of the season, there was little hope that this seeming overabundance of backfield material would prove of any use, but with one of the finest backfields in the Eagle's football history falling away to nothingness, it appears that all will have a chance.

Bill Cronin

Kamel Hassan, Bowler Johnson and Ownie Murphy, almost forgotten since the first days of Eagle scrimmage, will again vie for success. It will be one of the three who will be chosen to succeed Bill Cronin at half.

In his usual weekly lecture, Coach Cavanaugh praised the team for their gritty spirit, and then proceeded to prepare for the next Eagle opponent, Georgetown.

Cavanaugh ordered them to forget the past and to look ahead to the games to come.

Harold Ward

For the most part the line gave all that was it in against Marquette, and their good line defence on one occasion against the crashing Western backs shows that the present forward combination is the best yet tried.

The backfield was unable to show any of the new plays that were tried out last week in the practice scrimmages. Marquette held them too much in their own territory, and they were nearly always on the defensive.

This week will bring them out, and against Georgetown the Eagle should recover all its old form.

FRIEDMAN WILL FIGHT NEE AT ANY TIME

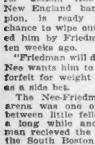
Eddie Mack writes:

"I see where Tommy Nee of South Boston is trying hard to get a match with Pancho Villa. Now it looks like a sure thing that the Boxing Commission won't let Villa fight here again unless he meets a man around his own weight.



Eddie Mack

If Nee is looking for a real fight and ready for action, Abe Friedman, the New England bantamweight champion, is ready to give him a chance to wipe out the defeat handed him by Friedman at the Arena ten weeks ago.

"Friedman will do any weight that Nee wants him to do, will post $500 forfeit for weight and also let it go as a side bet.

The Nee-Friedman battle at the arena was one of the best fights between little fellows seen here in a long while and although Friedman received the decision, many of the South Boston admirers of Nee thought that their local bet in the bantamweight ranks was done an injustice when he did not receive the award.

Matchmakers Joe Goode of the Arena A. C., and George Freeman of the Armory A. A., are ready to stage another Nee-Friedman match any time that Freddie Welderholt, manager for Nee, will give his consent on a winner-take-all basis or split it even.

If Nee or his manager is looking for real action, Friedman is ready and waiting for him to show signs of life and attach his name to a contract to box the real New England bantamweight champion.

New York, Oct. 30.—The third annual indoor athletic carnival of the Municipal Athletic Activities will be held in Madison Square Garden on January 31.

The meet will be featured by inter-departmental, individual and team races for men and women employes of the city government, in addition to several open and special events.

TUFTS EXPECTS TO WIN FROM HARVARD

About twenty thousand Tufts football supporters and alumni will throng to Harvard Stadium to witness the Harvard-Tufts battle Saturday. Followers of the Brown and Blue expect the Jumbos to keep their slate clean. All tickets for the Tufts cheering section are sold and very few are left for the wooden stands.

Speed Hennessey

A crowd of 45,000 is expected. Coach Casey started with the first practice session in preparation for the Crimson tussle.

An aerial attack in which George Perry, the demon passer, will toss the forwards, will feature the Jumbo attack. Sweeping end runs and placement kicking are expected to help the Medford collegians defeat Harvard.

Walter Cleary, line coach, will drive the Tufts line hard this week.

The victory over Middlebury put confidence into the Casey machine.

Casey says that there will be no changes in the Tufts lineup. Jack Wilson, "Woof" Tyler and Speed Hennessey, three star linemen, will cover their old assignments. The return of this trio will strengthen both the defence and offence.

Hal Reed

Tufts has high hopes because of the powerful "second" material. Mo Pett, Henry Kinkiestein, Keith Killam, Phil Gallivan and Chink Spooner are second string linemen who are capable of filling any line vacancies.

Whirlwinds Want Games

The Orient Whirlwinds of East Boston are in the field for football games with 135 amateur teams. The Burrell A. C., Revere Tygers and the St. Mary's are preferred.

CORNELL PLAYS FOR GREEN'S SCRUBS

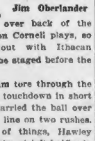
Hanover, N. H., Oct. 29.—Rumors of injuries from the Harvard game were negatived when Coach Hawley opened the week's practice for the Cornell game.



Jim Oberlander

He sent the second and third teams through a half hour scrimmage, and spent time with the first string men drilling plays until dark.

Coach Moore had the scrubs over back of the stands working on Cornell plays, so their real workout with Ithacan formations may be staged before the week is up.

The second team tore through the third outfit for a touchdown in short order. Loomis carried the ball over from the 11-yard line on two rushes.

By the look of things, Hawley intends to keep him at left halfback, where he started at the beginning of the season.

In the rest of the game, neither team gained much ground. Even the white pigskin, introduced when it began to get dark, failed to prevent innumerable fumbles and interception of forward passes.

YALE STUDENTS BACK TEAM AT EVEN MONEY

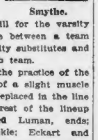
New Haven, Ct., Oct. 30.—Undergraduate Yale has started its week of preparation for the Army game by backing its team with bets placed at even money. Na goms of the season is more alluring to the young blades of sporting tendencies than the Army game for the outcome is always the most uncertain of any game on the schedule.



Smythe.

Coach Jones started his preparation with a long signal drill for the varsity and a scrimmage between a team made up of varsity substitutes and the regular scrub team.

Blair watched the practice of the varsity because of a slight muscle bruise, and was replaced in the line by Miller. The rest of the lineup was Bingham and Luman, ends; Milstead, left tackle; Eckart and Diller, guards; Lovejoy, centre; Richeson, quarterback, Stevens and Pond, halfbacks, and Mallory, fullback.

This is probably the lineup which will start the game against West Point except that Hulman may be at end and if Blair is in shape he will probably start as tackle.

DARTMOUTH GAME BIG TEST FOR CORNELL

Dartmouth has moved into the championship division as the result of the big surprise the lads from Hanover put across on their Crimson rivals in the Cambridge Stadium. Jess Hawley's pupils uncovered an offense that ranks with the best in the game. Even Knute Rockne's deceptive Notre Dame attack cannot be rated above the style of play that the White Mountain footballers displayed in their latest victory.

Bill Hatch

Cy Ashenbach

Cornell is going to find the Green team a real tough customer on Saturday. This contest is going to be one of the championship tussles of the season. Both are undefeated to date.

Harvard must not be considered a weak team because Dartmouth snowed under its representatives by a tally of 18 to 0. There are few teams in the country that could withstand the fierce and deceptive attack that Hawley's lads unleashed at Cambridge. The shift that made Dartmouth famous during the coaching days of Frank Cavanaugh has again been revived.

Experts who witnessed the struggle say that the Crimson players were thrown into almost complete route by the fierceness of the attack sent against them. At that, Harvard has a first-class rush line.

Hawley accomplished what many Dartmouth coaches have tried for the past sixteen years. The win is going to make Dartmouth players fight harder than ever for victory.

Just keep your eye on the Green team.

Yale showed by the victory over Brown that the Elis are represented by a finely developed outfit this season. The loss of Charley O'Hearn is not going to affect the playing of the lads from New Haven.

Nothing binds a football team together so well as some sorrow. The big Blue team is going to make every opponent understand how they feel in losing their star. Brown received the full force of the blow on Saturday.

Those who saw the game say that the Bulldog was aroused to such an extent they simply swept the Providence collegians off their feet. The Army is going to feel the force of this fighting spirit up in the New Haven bowl on Saturday.

DILLON AND SEARS IN BATTLE AT THE A

SHEVLIN BACK IN FORM

Eddie Shevlin is fast recovering from the injury that prevented him from going on with his bout with George Ward. He promises to be in there Friday night even though it means carrying a crutch.

EDDIE SHEVLIN RESUMES STRENUOUS TRAINING

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Dillon, Boston College youth who has proved he can box as well as translate Homer and Cæsar, will try to present a two-fisted argument when he clashes with Al Sears of East Boston in the feature ten-round bout at the Armory A. A. show in the Grand Opera House tonight.

This contest has been termed a clash between higher education and a representative of the gang. While Dillon has been busy with his books out at Newton, Al Sears has been receiving the praise of his gang over in East Boston.

It will also be the second time these rivals have met. In their last engagement, which was staged a couple of months ago, the Sears gang came out front when the final blows has been delivered. This was naturally quite a shock to those individuals who believe that a superior mentality can be gained only within the sacred walls of a college or university. And even the dear old reformers admit it requires brains to gain success in the ring.

Dillon is better boxer than Sears, also faster than the ex-Dublin Island youth. But when it comes to straight, old-fashioned fighting, Sears has the edge. He believes this asset will gain for him the victory this p. m.

EDDIE WATERS ALSO TO SHOW HIS CLASS.

Eddie Waters of the North End will be paired with Wop Manolian of Dorchester in one of the eight-rounders. Waters is a former amateur and New England champion at 145 pounds. He is a good boxer and hard puncher and should make things interesting for the rugged Manolian.

There will also be two more eights. Joe Monroe of Charlestown will oppose Edie Sardello of this city. These boys have met twice and each has a win to his credit. In the other eight Joe Pangrane of Quincy will tackle Sailor Cavanaugh of Cambridge.

EDDIE SHEVLIN RESUMES STRENUOUS TRAINING.

Eddie Shevlin, New England welterweight champion, has resumed strenuous training for his ten-round tussle with George Ward of Elizabeth, N. J., which will be staged by the South A. A. at the Boston Arena on Friday night. The ligament which Eddie strained when he turned his ankle is all right once more. It is no secret that Shevlin could have fought Friday night if he were pitted against any welterweight other than Ward. The Roxbury favorite, however, did not wish to box Ward without being in the best possible condition.

This writer has watched Shevlin prepare for bouts for many years, but we have never seen him put as much energy and determination into his work as he has put into this preliminary training for Ward. Shevlin is still bitter against Ward on account of the latter's "sneak" punch in their recent mill.

While in Boston last week Ward made statements which tended to rile Shevlin even more.

The Elizabeth, N. J., welterweight says he will not only beat Shevlin on Friday night, but that he will knock him out. Ward was a favorite last week, but with the postponement the betting odds have shifted until Eddie is now a slight choice.

The rush for reservations continues at the Suffolk A. A.'s office, No. 809 Washington street.

RED CHAPMAN IN TRAINING FOR CLASH WITH DREW.

Red Chapman, Dorchester junior lightweight, has started training for his preseason bout with Johnny Drew of Worcester. These boys will probably meet in a tussle to be staged by the Commercial A. C. at Mechanics Building on November 9. After Chapman scored a sensational win over Andy Chaney in this city, he was defeated by Drew at Worcester. Among other things, Drew scored a knockdown in the second round.

GEORGE ROBINSON SEEKING TUSSLE WITH PAL REED.

George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight who gave Johnny Wilson a rugged battle, has turned his attentions towards Pal Reed. He believes he would be able to stop the winning streak of the Natick warrior. If Robinson is able to get a bout with Reed and wins, he will be prepared to tackle Mike McTigue

Sailor Snyder says it will be two weeks before Joe Mandell, Philadelphia junior lightweight, is able to resume training. Mandell broke his right hand in his recent bout with Lou Paluso at Portland.

LEAHY NOW AFTER BOUT WITH SAILOR BYRON

Tommy Leahy of Worcester, is out to land a match with Sailor Byron, New England lightweight champion. Jackie Williams points to the fact that Leahy has already defeated Byron four times. The title, however, did not change hands as none of the matches staged since Byron won the title were at weight.

Jim McDonald informs us that Pat McCarthy's right hand, which he injured in his bout with Pal Reed and once more in his tussle with Hambone Kelly, is in condition again. This means that Pat will soon be on the warpath. He will give his attentions to Harry Greb, middleweight champion.

Wellingtons Seek Games

The Wellingtons, 105 pound champions of Rhode Island, would like to arrange for a game with any team in Greater Boston for November 18, the Dyer A. C. of South Boston preferred. Write to Arthur Donovan, 30 Seekell street, Providence, R. I.

HOPPE WINNER OF OPENING MATCH

Willie Hoppe

New York, Oct. 30 (Universal).—In a game marked by mediocrity by both players, Willie Hoppe defeated Erich Hagenlacher of Germany, 500 to 474, in the opening match of the international professional billiard tournament at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

As they neared the end, both cue wielders touched the depths of mediocre play, frequent scratches occurred. In five innings in a row, Hoppe made only five points and Hagenlacher nine. Finally Hoppe ran eighteen and broke the monotony. He retired when he missed a five cushion shot attempt.

On what proved his final turn at the table, in the twenty-sixth inning, Hoppe ran out with a cluster of thirty-six.

The score follows:
Hoppe, 0, 13, 10, 15, 18, 17, 18, 19, 36, 47, 0, 0, 31, 0, 0, 1, 0, 0, 0

ARMORY A.A. TONIGHT

LESTINA AND BYSZKO DRAW IN MAT BOUT

New York, Oct. 30.—Wladek Zbyszko, Polish wrestler, and Marin Lestina of Chicago, a Greek-Italian wrestler, fought a hard, clean bout at the local armory of 10 rounds without a fall and unfinished, it until 12 o'clock, but neither was able to win the match. Two hours would end in a draw.

Zbyszko was the stronger man, but Lestina's strength was matched by wrestling science and toward the end Pole was doing most of the work. Twice during the final fifty minutes it looked as though Lestina was due for a fall when Zbyszko caught a pair of wrist holds on him.

The first two hours of the match saw Pole doing his best work on the mat, tossing the Greek around at will. He seemed to tire after midnight.

The crowd of six thousand was so interested in the match that few knew of the collapse of a section of the grandstand which sent one man to a hospital and brought medical attention to thirteen others.

HOLY CROSS PLAYS VERMONT SATURDAY

Worcester, Oct. 30.—In Saturday's game with Vermont, Holy Cross meets a worthy foe.

The Purple coaches realize they must produce high grade football to turn back the Green Mountain team.

Last year Vermont, fresh from a victory over Dartmouth, came to Worcester confident of a win.

Their desperate last period rally was beaten back and Vermont left the field on the short end of a 16 to 0 score.

Coach Keady is out to revenge defeat, so Worcester fans look forward to the best home game on the Purple's schedule.

AMATEURS TO SHOW WARES AT DILBOY

Arrangements have been practically completed for the second amateur boxing tournament of the season to be staged by George Dilboy Post V. F. W., in K of C Hall, Somerville, Thursday evening.

Gene Driscoll

The following classes will be contested, 112, 126, 135, 147 and 160 lbs., and the committee is in receipt of entries from the cream of each class. Among the outstanding entries are Win Anderson, ex-college athlete from North Easton, who is now appearing in the 135 pound class, and Bob Dawson of Dorchester, in the 147 pound class.

This will be Dawson's first appearance boxing around Boston, he having changed his residence from the West Coast, where he proved a sensation in all his matches. The followers of the amateurs will turn out in large numbers to get a peak at the boys to be first performance among the rising boys of this section.

GALFUND DEFEATS ADAIR IN TWELVE

New York, Oct. 30.—Harry Galfund, Brooklyn welterweight outpointed Barney Adair of Harlem in 12 rounds. It was a rough, tough fight.

Al Pollio, former National junior lightweight champion, scored a clean knockout over Jimmy Moran in the third.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Many years ago I used to attend meetings of the multi-millionaires of the great gold mines in the Transvaal—mines which produced half the total gold which comes annually from the earth. It was a common thing for the mining engineers to bring forward beautiful plans for echoing dazzling development feats. Often these plans hadn't a single fault—except that they would have well-nigh ruined the companies, so costly were they. The mine owners had to apply the knife severely, their duty was to bring the projected expenditures into reasonable magnitude. This checked the companies, and yet permitted them to deal with all but reasonable developments.

The Grand Imperial Wizard, Ex-Dentist

What Thinks He of These Non-Anglo-Saxons?

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Mr. Evans, who in private life was a modest dentist, is in public life the Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan. This good dentist and wizard, surrounded by his Dragons, Cyclopses, Grand Dragons, Klokards, and others of the Grand Ku Klux Kloncilium, is worried about his country.

New York especially bothers him, he feels responsibility for New York's welfare and "100 per cent. American" salvation.

Says he:

"Without being unkind or unjust, we can say that there are in New York City about two and one-tenth times as many unassimilable foreigners as native Americans, while the better inferior aliens, added together, each a total almost three and one-half times that of the American stock.

"If this nation is to continue its charted course, and attain its destiny, there will have to be a harmonious assimilation of each and every alien element in complete accordance with these essential standards I have laid down. Such assimilation implies a common merging, which, to be successful, must bring about true social and political equality.

"It means intermarriage upon a basis of physical, mental and moral equality, with no menacing threat of unEugenic consequences to succeeding generations.

"It must mean, in a culminating sense, a spiritual wedding with the State, a kind and character of citizenship in which no higher temporal loyalty shall exist, or be permitted to exist."

The people of New York of course will appreciate the Imperial Wizard's tender solicitude. They also undoubtedly must be amazed at New York's growth and general prosperity, considering the number of "unassimilable foreigners" within its ranks.

How marvelous that those "unassimilable" creatures should be able to stand without difficulty the increased real estate assessment of one billion dollars in one year, that they should manage, in spite of their "unassimilable" foreign characteristics, to build up the greatest city in the world, a city worth more in actual cash than many American States, and many foreign countries.

All this must amaze the "unassimilable" foreigners, as much as it does the Imperial Wizard himself.

---

This thoughtful wizard, anxious to make the United States what he thinks it ought to be, worries about many different kinds of foreigners. We are all foreigners, except the Indians—and they were foreign a few thousand years ago—when they came over from Asia—but it seems to Wizard Evans that the only foreigner worth while is the Anglo-Saxon.

The Imperial Wizard and all the Cyclopses and Klokards presumably are pure Anglo-Saxons, or think they are.

Then there are the various religions; unless you happen to be a Protestant you can't really be a valuable citizen of the United States. In fact, you ought not to be tolerated here at all.

---

The "Today" column of the Boston American last Thursday contained this comment on the Imperial Wizard's important speech:

"Imperial Wizard Evans, of the Ku Klux, is worried because in this country only a little more than a third are of native Anglo-Saxon stock.' World the distinguished Wizard have kept out Christopher Columbus? His head's a drop of Anglo-Saxon blood in his veins, although he did have, on his mother's side, a good supply of Jewish blood.

"Wizard Evans objects to the Jew 'because he is unblendable.' Yet Disraeli, in England, 'blended' well enough to make Victoria Empress of India.

"Gambetta, in France, 'blended' to the extent of establishing the stupidity of Napoleon Third after 1870.

"Heine 'blends' pretty well with the best literature this earth has produced.

"And Spinoza, another Jew, is 'blended' in the best thinking process of every philosopher, Jew and Gentile

"Without questioning the sincerity of Wizard Evans, it might be appropriate to suggest careful analysis and proof, as, for instance, when he says 'to Catholics the Presidency at Washington is subordinate to the priesthood at Rome.'"

The points here made most courteously will, of course, interest the wizard. He would hardly suggest that Christopher Columbus was an Anglo-Saxon, as he was Italian on his father's side, and on his mother's side descended from Spanish Jews that had been forced to conceal their religion.

The great wizard of the Ku Klux will admit that Alexander the Great, Caesar, Napoleon Bonaparte, Michael Angelo, Beethoven, Archimedes, Socrates, Aristotle, Plato, Pythagoras and others with whom the dentist wizard is familiar, were not exactly Anglo-Saxons. Yet they each made a mark in the world.

Why not be content to let the Anglo-Saxons exclusively enjoy the glorious titles "Klokards, Cyclopses, Wizards, Imperial Wizards," etc., while allowing those that are not Anglo-Saxons to go along and do what little they can on the outskirts of intellectual life and civilized activity?

Swing Your Partners

Society Has Hard Work Keeping Track of Itself

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Some of our very "best" people, it is announced, go to bed with severe headaches, trying to keep track of their friends and relations because of the demon divorce. For instance, a society reporter wishes to announce the illness of a lady, Mrs. Harry Cooke Cushing 3rd. She was formerly Miss Kathleen Vanderbilt, but that doesn't tell you the story.

The reporter has to add, "her mother is Mrs. Sydney J. Colford, Jr. Her father is Reginald Vanderbilt. Her husband is a son of Horace Cushing, Jr., of Boston, and his mother is Mrs. J. Henry Lienau."

The newly rich, blossoming on the war profits and accepted more or less in society's bosom, are a sad, worried, distracted lot, trying but in vain to keep "Who's Who."

We are not supposed to invite a man and his divorced wife to the same party. You can't mention any name except with the profoundest respect—which is not always easy—for it may be the name of the mother or father or somebody with an entirely different name whom you are addressing.

It has been suggested, rather wisely, that those divorced could keep and use all the names they have had for public guidance. Thus, if Miss Smith marries Mr. Jones, divorces him and takes on Mr. Robertson, she should have on her visiting card Mrs. Smith-Jones-Robertson.

Perhaps an even simpler plan would be for the married lady to keep her maiden name, persistently calling herself Miss Smith through all of her marriages. That is the custom in parts of Greenwich Village, and a simple custom. To straighten out a Miss Smith it would only be necessary to ask, "To whom are you married now?"

At best, however, it's confusing.

Cause for Argument

Editor Boston American:

Recently, while in a crowd of friends, an argument arose over the question, "Is every girl too good for any man?" After I had heard several of the arguments, I realized that the question was not such a foolish one as it may seem. Imagine my surprise when one of the young men insisted that no man, be he ever so good, was good enough for any woman. I might add that there is the suggestion that a man somewhat belittles himself to make such a statement. MARION E. KING.

Marriage of Love

Editor Boston American:

Don't think for a minute that all young girls marry old men for their money. I am twenty-five and my husband is fifty. We have been married five years and are supremely happy and my husband's slim bank account will prove to any one that I did not marry him for his money.

All Need Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

My husband works only four days a week, for which he gets eighteen dollars, and this is all I have to live on. I have to wash out my children's underwear Saturday night, so as to have them dry for Sunday, as they only have one set apiece. I have three children—a girl eight, a boy seven, and a baby, six months. I would also be grateful, for a black Winter coat, size 42, for myself.

MRS. J. W.

Baby Carriage Given

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a reed carriage which is in very good condition which anyone can have who will call for it.

MRS. W. C.

Thank you. Baby carriages are always needed. You have been sent the address of Mrs. A. B., and she has been asked to call.

Clothes for Children

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a few things that will be useful to someone. They include two coats, sixteen-year-old size, dresses for a girl twelve and a rain cape, shoes size 4½, two nice flannel nightgowns for a child five years old, and mags zines. Please send me the names of those most needy.

G. B.

Thank you. You have been sent the addr ss of Miss J. C. for the things size sixteen, and the address of Mrs. H. L. D., mother of six children, for the other things.

Little Girl Pleads

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a little girl fourteen years old. I have a little brother and sister. My father has been dead for seven years and my mother has to work hard to get along. Is there any kind reader that has clothes that would fit us or could be made over. My brother is ten, my sister nine, and I am fourteen. They have raised my mother's rent, and she hasn't been able to work full time on account of her health. I am so afraid my mother will have to give up work; then what will become of us? I have been an awful care, for I have been sickly since a baby. Mama takes size 36 in clothes.

LAURA.

Need School Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there any of your readers that can let me have a coat for a girl of ten and a boy of the same age, and also some underwear, so they can continue to go to school in the cold weather. I am a widow with five children, and it is a desperate job to keep them all clothed. I try to keep the older ones in clothes anyway, so I have to ask for clothes for the younger ones.

A. M. S.

Widow in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

Will some one please give a seven-year-old boy some clothes. He has only some ragged Summer clothes. He also needs a sweater that closes at the neck, as he has the croup in Winter unless his chest is covered well. I am a widow working for eleven dollars a week. I would like a sweater also, size 42 or 44, as I do night work, and it is sometimes pretty cold. I would also appreciate underwear or dresses.

MRS. C. J.

Help for Master Charles

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the address of that wonderful boy, Master Charles. I feel sorry for him and his mother. I am sure I have some things that will help him out, and will try to find some things for his mother. I am still ill and unable to work, and it is very cold. I would like very much to be able to buy some comforters or quilts from anyone who could spare them. If I were only wealthy I would do something for every one in the column, but I am really in need myself. Will you please send Master Charles this dollar. It seems small, but it is my very best.

MRS. M. H.

The dollar has been forwarded to Master Charles, and you have been sent his address. I know he will be very grateful when he knows what a generous person it was that sent it. Your request for quilts has been noted, and we will let you know if any are offered.

Coat for Dora K.

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you send me the address of this little school girl, Dora K., and I will give her a perfectly good coat. My girl grew so much in the past year that she is unable to wear it. I can also give her a number of other things, such as hats and stockings. I also have a lot of men's clothing, two overcoats and three suits with extra pants, and three hats, all in good condition, and two pairs shoes, size 8. Clothes are size 38.

MRS. M. A. T.

Thank you. You have been sent Dora K.'s address and the address of Mrs. W. R. G., whose husband will appreciate the clothing, and of Mrs. B. C., whose husband will be grateful for the shoes. Also thank you for your kind words which we didn't print, but read just the same.

Wants a Black Kitten

Editor Helping Hand:

Has anyone a black kitten? I would give it a good home. I am a girl of eleven and have a sister two years old. I am sure my mother would appreciate it very much.

CHARGE 4 BILLION TO OUR EXPERIENCE ACCOUNT

By Herbert Kaufman

LET us, at least, get a laugh out of those dear, departed four billions, which Louis Loucheur, former minister of the devastated regions, bluntly informs us "can't be recovered."

The situation is epitomized by the story of Clancy, bartender, who also waited until after delivering the goods to take up the matter of credit.

"Is it safe to trust Con O'Brien for a schooner of beer?" he inquires of Saloonkeeper Grogan. "Has he had the beer?" asks Grogan. "That he has," answers Clancy. "Then it is," says Grogan.

One such international joke, however, should suffice to quell any further local ambitions for the foreign stage.

If we ever again play a part in yonder theatres, Europe's sardonic humor (can't you hear 'em pat pockets and chuckle at the ludicrous Yankee?) may be encouraged, by a paralyzing crack on the treasury funny-bone, to attempt a slap in the face or even a kick at our shins.

Then, pray, where shall we be, with a navy that Admiral Rodman claims can't protect our three billion dollars of export commerce because Congress hasn't funds for needed submarines, seaplane carriers and scout cruisers?

Welch Is the Word, Me Lads

If outstanding allied loans were collected, though, we might afford aerial fleets almost equal to those of France, wishing to know where the money can be found to amortize her debt, even at 3 per cent. interest. She can't both keep in a position to pay and fight.

Surely, no one expects the world's new cock-of-the-walk to trim wings or clip spurs simply for the sake of "scraps of paper." Mere I. O. U.'s. How do we get that way?

Two hundred million dollars a year to the United States: entendes, mes enfants, ces droles (hear these droll ones rave). Why that would mean a restriction of flying fleets and a standing army only four times the size of ours.

Poincare wishes us to realize that he's not a Baldwin, and openly boasts there'll be "no such sorry bargain" for his country, as the British Premier concluded here. "Welch is the word, me lads."

Speaking at Campigny, he declares Germany shan't have a single concession—the Ruhr won't be evacuated: "we won't budge an inch," or "surrender a sou of the amount due us."

Admitting partial acceptance of the Hughes plan, he states that the recommendations of any commission shall neither bind his government nor result in an international conference.

Exit Kaiser Wilhelm; enter Kaiser Raymond. And we fell for the game.

Rubbing Some Fur the Wrong Way

Mrs. Norma Gillette of San Francisco pours a special perfume over her greenbacks so that they can be traced in case of theft. Persons unknown loot her bureau drawer; now detectives are sniffing for the missing money.

Here's hoping that she'll fare better than a certain overcredulous democracy that didn't provide for the unexpected and consequently won't get a smell of its "borrowed" cash.

The Count de Grammont mentions in his memoirs how an exalted person once demanded if he suspected her of unfair play for the sake of a few shillings.

"Madame," he retorted, "royalty never cheats except for crowns."

The Oregon Board of Health wants the State Medical Examining Board to revoke the licenses of practitioners who refuse to use diphtheria anti-toxin and smallpox vaccine.

The same community authority that enforces quarantine should protect healthy citizens from roaming infection.

Promptly protected by defenders of liberty who'd rather encounter a leper in the subway than interference with "personal right."

But call one of them an anarchist and he'll sue you for slander. Fanatics brook no facts.

Which partially accounts for much cancellation propaganda. Bankers holding enormous blocks of depreciated European bonds are more logically inspired—flagless finance is entirely dollars-and-cent-imental.

Antidotes for Skepticism

The MacMillan Arctic expedition, ice-locked eleven and a half degrees from the North Pole, listens in on a sermon at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and flashed back its applause.

The writer remembers when Nicola Testa was regarded as a hare-brained dreamer because he foresaw the sending of "speech through a mountain."

Scepticism owes this particular gentleman several humble apologies. Civilization lost many a precious opportunity by discounting his pioneer experiments, which anticipated the most of recent electrical development.

Like Burke, he may well remind us, "I was right," and perforce rest content with "yes, you are always right, but you are always right too soon."

Happily, men of creative turn are blessed with a sanguine temperment, otherwise mass stupidity and inappreciation had long since betrayed progress.

As witness, 99-year-old Jonathan Begg of Oakland, California, who perfected twelve inventions in the past ten years and optimistically plans to make the next decade the really fruitful stage of his career.

First Movies of Nature's Actual Process in Creation of Life

Newest Marvel of Screen May Reveal to Humanity the Mystery of Life and Death

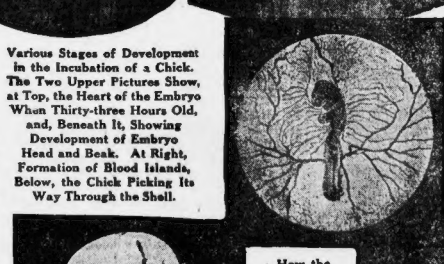
A "Close-Up" of the Fertile Egg Used in Dr. Herm's Life-Creation Movie, Showing the Observation Window Cut Into Its Side.

Dr. Charles F. Herm, Pioneer in Photographing the First Life-Processes, Examining the Egg Which He Used in "Shooting" His First Astonishing Scientific "Photoplay."

Miss Lispeth M. Budrasz, Dr. Herm's Pretty Assistant, Photographing the Hatching Chick with the Remarkable Scientific Movie Camera.



Various Stages of Development in the Incubation of a Chick. The Two Upper Pictures Show, at Top, the Heart of the Embryo When Thirty-three Hours Old, and, Beneath It, Showing Development of Embryo Head and Beak. At Right, Formation of Blood Islands, Below, the Chick Picking Its Way Through the Shell.

How the 'Movie Chick' Looked Just After It Was Born. Note the Extraordinary Clarity of the Photography, and the Detail of the "Subject's" Structure.

Fighting His Way Out of the Imprisoning Shell. The Chick at This Stage Presents a Striking Contrast with His Younger, Undeveloped Self.

AT LAST! The Newcomer Steps Out Onto the Scientist's Table, Ready to Make His Bow to the World After His Various Tiresome Processes of Growth.

ANOTHER amazing forward step has been taken toward solving the "mysterics of inscrutable nature."

For the first time in the history of science, a complete and clearly defined set of motion pictures has been made of the marvelous process of life itself, showing the gradual development of a living creature from its microscopic embryo.

It is a triumph that will be remembered when other "mammoth achievements of the screen," now familiar, are perhaps forgotten.

The drama that this film portrays is the pre-birth story of a process paralleled in every higher animal—including man.

All animals, from the humblest titmouse to the proudest and most perfectly formed human being, start life as a single microscopic cell, less than one one-hundredth of an inch in diameter. The whole process of development can be thought of in terms of cells, their multiplication, their re-arrangement and their change of form.

The first stages consist of the cutting up of the fertilized ovum into a number of similar, or almost similar, rounded cells. In the next stage, the rough ground plan of the future embryo is blocked out by the formation of three layers of cells, which gradually differentiate in structure and function.

The outer of the three layers gives rise to the future brain and spinal cord, the eye, ear and nose, the outer skin; the innermost layer modifies itself into a sketch of the intestines, with liver, sweetbread, thyroid and other glands; while the intermediate layer produces the rudiments of the blood system, the kidneys, the muscles and the skeleton.

The process has long been known, but that it should be actually photographed in motion pictures is the extraordinary "new thing."

The "director" who did it has a name which has never been, and may never be, seen in flaming electric lights on Broadway, but it will live in all encyclopedias.

He is Dr. Charles F. Herm, former curator of physiology at the American Museum of Natural History, who is now devoting himself to independent scientific experiment.

The particular form of potential life which he chose for this amazing motion picture, was an ordinary chicken egg. It shows every stage of development that goes on inside the egg from the moment the cells begin forming to the time when the full-fledged, peeping chick pecks its way out of the shell.

The same process will be immediately turned to matters of direct and vital concern to humanity. In association with Dr. Alexis Carrel, Dr. Herm will shortly make a series of pictures showing the activities of cancer cells in attacking healthy tissue. From these films it is believed facts will be learned that will aid science in combating this great enemy of mankind.

Another possibility which the present generation may live to see—though Dr. Herm ventures no predictions on the subject—is the combination of his machine, in some manner yet to be perfected, with the X-ray. With that accomplished, one may look forward to seeing, for scientific purposes, an actual film story of the cycle of human life from the tiny ovum to the completely formed human being.

The egg picture is a complete success. Dr. Herm was assisted in this work by Miss Lispeth M. Budrasz, who is what no one suspected ever existed outside H. G. Wells's novels—an extremely pretty girl, and an accomplished scientist, too.

First of all—after setting up his combined motion picture camera, microscope, and time-clock—Dr. Herm carefully inserted a "glass window" into the side of a fresh egg.

With the edge of a small triangular file, he delicately sawed out a rectangular section, a half-inch by three-quarters of an inch, barely filing through the shell, without puncturing the film beneath. Then, with the point of a sharp knife, which had first been sterilized, he cut through the film, removed the piece of shell with the film adhering, and replaced it with a square of thin, sterilized glass, held in place and hermetically sealed with paraffin.

The egg was then placed in an incubator, and the complicated machinery was set in motion, with the microscopic lens pointing directly into the interior of the egg.

Driven automically by the time-clock, the machine flashed a strong light every ten minutes through the glass window into the interior of the egg and snapped a picture on a regular motion picture film.

This process went on night and day for thirty-six hours before it was modified. All the life of an egg is contained in the yolk, and presently, within this yolk, the life-drama began to unfold.

First, faithfully and perfectly portrayed on the film, there was a thickening of certain spots where the cells began to form blood islands. Hours later these blood islands, composed of innumerable life-cells which were gradually undergoing changes that would enable them to do specialized work, began to form a heart, which presently beat!

Life and movement were going on in the egg, at the end of thirty-six hours, before any actual outline of the little chick had been formed!

And all this was caught and recorded.

The tempo of the camera was now slightly changed, and the process went on.

At the end of forty-eight hours, the film began to show filaments, like threads, slowing forming, which were later to become the blood vessels and other organs in the body.

Through the hours that followed, an embryonic form, more and more sharply outlined, began to appear. At the end of the sixth day there was no sign of beak or feathers, but one could plainly see an outline of the body, neck and head, alive and moving with the heart pulsations.

On the tenth day a little pointed spot appeared on the head, darker than the rest, which was later to become the beak. As the mysterious process of creation unfolded, the body grew larger, the little folded-up legs began to show, the feathers began to sprout, the beak became hard and sharply defined.

The camera was shifted part of the time, so that some views show the whole egg, in which a crack presently appears, made by the little chick pecking at its prison. The crack widens, the head emerges, the broken bits of shell fall away—and a very much surprised newcomer steps out on the scientist's table, to make its bow to the world!

The picture-making took about three weeks. When Dr. Herm showed the film later to a party of scientists and biologists, with the film speeded up, they saw the whole process of the life-cycle unfolding before their eyes like a magic flower.

Dr. Herm is making other films concerned with advanced research, and the further development of these methods may lead to revelations which no scientific prophet can yet foresee.

It is also believed that the mechanism devised by Dr. Herm may yield new discoveries in the realm of chemical analysis. It is being tested on the problem of discovering the manner in which certain acids attack wood fibre to reduce it to pulp for paper manufacture. This machine can catch movements much faster than the eye can follow them, and it never gets tired, so that a finer and more complete observation can be made than is possible for a scientist looking through a microscope.

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

WHILE the price of eating is coming down the cost of tipping is going up. You used to eat a two-dollar meal and give the waiter twenty cents. Now you eat a twenty-cent meal and give the waiter the two bucks.

OFFERING him less than half a dollar is just another way to commit suicide.

IF you've only got a dime or a quarter to leave him you want to be sure and ring up the emergency hospital first.

THEN when you hear the ambulance going outside, slip him the dime and run for the door.

WAITERS would be glad to take less than twenty-five cents, but most of them can't afford it.

WHEN a barber stands in front of you with the check in one hand and a razor in the other, you're naturally going to tip him to avoid having any throat trouble.

SOME bootblacks even drop your coat on the floor and then expect you to give them a quarter for brushing it off.

BARBERS, waiters and manicurists do their work thoroughly, and they can always clean your pockets without the aid of gasoline.

THE only time some taxicab drivers ever say "thank you" is when you don't give them anything.

OF course, when they do their work well they expect a piece of change for it. Still, when George Washington won the revolutionary war nobody slipped him fifty cents.

AND when Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves, not one of them left a dime under his plate.

IF barbers, waiters and taxicab drivers keep on, it won't be long before a man will walk wherever he goes, bring his own meals, cut his own hair and tip himself.

HELP YOUR HUSBAND IF YOU WISH HIM TO CHNGE JOB.

So you, as a wife, blame your husband for not getting "out of a job," meaning of course that you want him to change his job.

Often remarks to this effect result in awakening a husband to the point where he bestirs himself and does better, but in other cases it acts only as a source of discouragement.

Many of the wives who make this remark insist on living on such a scale that their husbands are unable to meet expenses during an experimental period necessitated by a change of occupation.

The husband knows what it costs to run his home from week to week.

If he has nothing ahead to meet such expenses he is naturally fearful about making a change which might better his situation, or it might not.

While the late Ambassador Joseph H. Choate, was attending a London banquet, he became engaged in conversation with an American lady. During one of the courses the lady in her embarrassment let an egg fall to the floor.

"Oh, dear," she said to the Ambassador. "I have just dropped an egg. What shall I do?"

"Cackle, Madam, cackle," said Mr. Choate.

Returning from school the other afternoon, a little girl proudly informed her mother that she had learned to "punctuate."

"Well, dear," said her mother, "and how is it done?"

"You see, Mother," explained the child, "when you write 'Hark!' you put a hairpin after it, and when you ask a question, you put a buttonhook."
